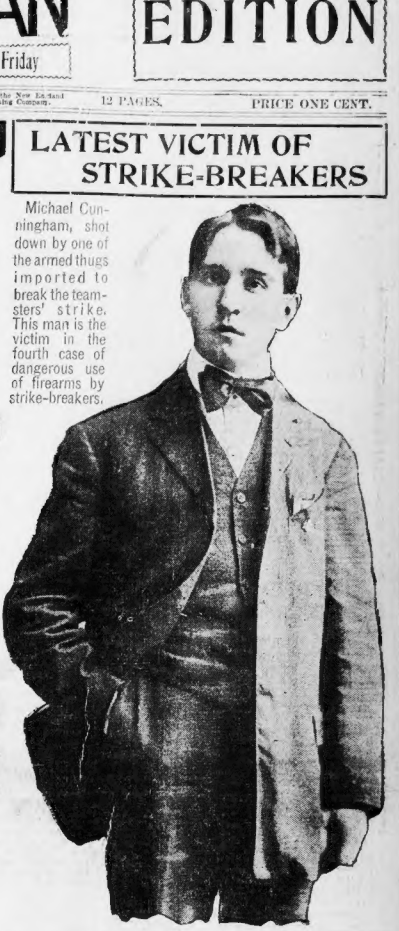
"JUSTICE" CRIES MOTHER OF BOY SHOT BY STRIKE-BREAKER

LATEST VICTIM OF STRIKE-BREAKERS



Michael Cunningham, shot down by one of the armed thugs imported to break the teamsters' strike. This man is the victim in the fourth case of dangerous use of firearms by strike-breakers.

Strike-Breakers Shoot Two in Four Attacks With Revolvers

SUNDAY, APRIL 7—Chief Lieutenant Earle of Waddell & Mahon's strike-breaking forces threatened a crowd of citizens in front of "Fort Bradley" by furishing a heavy caliber revolver and threatening to shoot. This was the first attempt of the strike-breakers to use firearms.

SUNDAY, APRIL 14—Spiros Spirinos, a young Greek, SHOT from a third-story window of "Fort Bradley" BY JOHN J. GAFFNEY, STRIKE-BREAKER.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 24—A STRIKE-BREAKER on one of Lewis Flanders & Co.'s teams FIRED THREE SHOTS at a crowd of boys on West Third stret, South Boston.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 24—Michael Cunningham SHOT TWICE BY A STRIKE-BREAKER on A street, South Boston. Lewis Harris, strike-breaker from New York, is charged with attempted murder.

"I want justice to be dne to my boy," cried Mrs. Maria Cunningham, mother of Michael J. Cunningham, the union teamster who was shot by a strike-breaker, and who is now in a critical condition at the City Hospital, to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter at her home on West Fifth street, South Boston, to-day.

"May God spare other mothers from such trouble as has come to me. If anything should happen to my boy I should never rest until I had seen the man who is responsible for his death given the greatest punishment that the law can give."

HOLD BREAKER IN $1,000 BAIL.

Lewis Harris, a strike-breaker, one of those brought from New York by Captain Bradley to force the union teamsters to give up their contest for higher wages and shorter hours, appeared in the South Boston court to-day, charged with attempt to kill Cunningham. He pleaded not guilty, and because of the serious condition of Cunningham the case was continued until next Thursday. Bail was placed at $1,000. Harris worked for Fifield, Richardson & Co. and efforts are being made to secure his freedom.

Anthony Hegeman and Fred P. Wilson, guards who were with Harris when the shooting occurred, were held as witnesses for a time, and then were allowed to go on their promise to appear in court when wanted.

EXTRA POLICE GUARDS ORDERED

Two other cases of shooting on the part of the strike-breakers have aroused the police. Superintendent Pierce ordered extra details of police scattered through the South Boston district to-day, and will increase the force when the strike-breakers go aboard their ships, the Zealandia, at the Joy line wharf to-night. Any display of weapons will meet with prompt action.

Forrest Marston, another of Captain Bradley's men, appeared in court to-day to answer to the charge of displaying a revolver last night on Hanover street.

Mother Cries for Vengeance.

"My poor boy," Mrs. Cunningham said when a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter found her at the Cunningham home at No. 38 West Fifth street to-day. "I have just come from the hospital and they would not let me see him. They say I cannot see him until 2 o'clock. All they would tell me was that they have not yet found the bullet and that his case is too bad yet for them to make any more attempts just now.

"My comfort is that they told me that he is not on the dangerous list.

"The law should deal severely with those men who come here with pistols and shoot down quiet citizens. Mike was always quiet and easy going, and the last one in the world who would look for trouble.

"Every week he brought me home his pay, and for four years since he has been in Hiffern's he has gone to work regularly every day, coming home early and going to bed early while the work on the fronts was so hard.

"God Spare Other Mothers."

"The neighbors have told me what a bad lot the young fellows are who come on here to break the strike, but I did not think we would be the first to suffer.

"God spare other mothers in Boston from trouble like ours."

Mrs. Cunningham was greatly agitated when they brought her word that her oldest son had been taken to the hospital. As early as she could get away she went to the hospital, telling her husband and the rest of the family that she would let them know if anything more serious than she had been told, should happen.

Little Sister Mourns.

While she went away little Norah, aged twelve years, a pupil at the St. Peter and Paul's parochial school, kept the house and had a good cry all to herself, for her brother Mike is the favorite of the baby of the family.

"These are bad men who shot my dear brother," she said tearfully when a BOSTON AMERICA reporter saw her. "I don't see how they could be so wicked as to shoot Mike. He never made any trouble for anybody. He was the best brother in the world, and he looked out for us all. He was always at home nights."

Norah had to stay home from school while her mother went to the hospital. The other members of the family besides the father are Matthew, aged twenty-two years, and Mary, eighteen years, who works in a cigar factory.

Mrs. Cunningham looked tired and unhappy when she arrived home from her fruitless trip. She worried about her son's condition. How he came to be shot was past her understanding because she knew Michael always had the reputation of being a straight-going quiet lad and she knew, too, that he had been out at night as soon as any other member of the family.

"I hope and pray that those men will be punished," she said. "It is perfect injustice to us here at home here to have him lie. It is time that something was done when an innocent boy is shot down right in the streets.

"It is my prayer that Michael will come home to us soon and that we can nurse him to his strength. If anything should happen to my boy I should never rest until I had seen the man who is responsible for his death given the greatest punishment that the law can give. I want justice to be done to my boy. Somebody should suffer for what has been done to him."

"BURRAGE LOST $2,000,000 IN COPPER RANGE"

—W. A. PAINE

State street is taking a deep interest in the $2,000,000 suit in the Supreme Judicial Court against Albert C. Burrage and Thomas W. Lawson for selling, in alleged violation of an agreement, some of the 70,000 shares of stock which they hold.

Many prominent financiers were present when the hearing in the suit was resumed to-day.

Some of the ablest counsel in Boston have been engaged by plaintiffs and defendants.

Royal S. Jones, former United States District Attorney, appeared for the first time as associate counsel for Mr. Lawson, who, with Mr. Burrage, so far has been represented by Attorneys Mayberry, Albers and Washburn.

Explains Stock Deal.

William A. Paine of Paine, Webster & Co., president of the Copper Range Consolidated Company, who yesterday declared that it has already cost Mr. Burrage $2,000,000 because he sold the stock, was the first witness this morning. Since the sale of the stock Mr. Webster said the stock has greatly increased in value.

Mr. Paine this morning explained the operations of the stock exchange clearing house to show why it is impossible to trace the ownership of any particular certificate.

Trimountain Debt $545,542.

Mr. Morse began direct examination of Mr. Paine to bring out the details of the Trimountain debt and its payment, but this was put over by the court for the present to await a cross suit to determine the exact extent of the damages towards which Mr. Paine testified yesterday. Mr. Burrage had paid $200,000 down in August, 1905, and towards which he had since then paid nothing.

The Trimountain debt, he testified, now stands at $545,542.

GREAT MEETING BOOMS PUBLIC OPINION BILL

BIG GATHERING AT FANEUIL HALL OPENED BY ROBERT TREAT PAINE, JR.

With eloquent speakers ready to offer sound argument and with an enthusiastic audience united in its purpose, the public mass meeting to boom the famous Public Opinion bill, now pending in the Legislature, began at noon to-day in historic old Faneuil Hall.

The meeting was called to order at 12 noon by Robert Treat Paine, Jr., as president of the Public Opinion League, which organized the meeting. One gallery was reserved for women and their escorts, the rest of the big auditorium for men interested, as men of New England have been for years and years, in the rigid preservation of their political rights and privileges.

A band had been engaged for the occasion, to supplement the oratory of the afternoon with stirring music of a patriotic nature, well suited to the time and the place.

Noted Men as Speakers.

A distinguished list of speakers had been invited to attend this meeting. Notable among those scheduled to speak is President Charles W. Eliot of Harvard University. President Eliot has been represented in Republican newspapers as opposed to the Public Opinion Bill. On the contrary, however, to quite a recent statement of Robert Treat Paine, Jr.:

"President Eliot feels that it is his duty to come to the meeting. He will surprise some of those who have been claiming he was against the Public Opinion Bill. He favors initiative for cities, and is more pronounced along similar lines than most of us."

Others invited to speak beside President Eliot are Representative Robert Luce of Somerville, Representative Samuel Ross of New Bedford, Editor Erwin D. Mead of the New England Magazine, President Edward Cowen of the Massachusetts State Branch, A. F. of L., Dennis D. Driscoll, President A. M. Huddell of the Boston Central Labor Union, Henry Sterling and Henry Abrahams.

R. T. Paine, Jr., Opens Meeting.

President Paine, of the Public Opinion League, in opening the meeting, said:

"We are assembled to-day in old Faneuil Hall to consider our fundamental rights as citizens and to take steps to safeguard to ourselves and to our children the rights guaranteed to us by the Constitution of the Commonwealth. We have, in the lapse of time, permitted those rights to be impaired. Now when we petition the Legislature to permit us again the exercise of our constitutional rights, in the mildest and most conservative manner through a public opinion bill, we find that hidden forces and secret influences are operating to deny to the people their sacred and unalienable rights.

"What is the public opinion bill? It is a bill which simply provides that the people may give expression to their deliberate opinion on important questions of public policy that may deeply concern their happiness and welfare. When can they do so? At the regular State election on the ballot.

"The Constitution, in the Bill of Rights, in Article 19, solemnly guarantees the right which you will read on the chart on this wall: 'The people have a right to give instructions to their representatives.'

Adopted in 1780.

"This Constitution of ours was adopted towards the end of the Revolutionary War in 1780. The greatest men of the State met in the convention which framed the Constitution; men like Hancock, and John Adams, and Sam Adams, and James Bowdoin. It was John Adams who was afterwards the President of the United States, who wrote the Bill of Rights and inserted with his own hand this Right of Instructions.

"Those men knew what that Right of Instructions meant. They were accustomed to use it frequently. Look on the wall again and notice how frequently the men of Boston gave instructions to their representatives, beginning when the town was very small, for back in 1661, and coming down to the days of the Revolution and after it.

Knew What They Were Doing.

"When our forefathers inserted that Right of Instructions in the Constitution they knew what they were doing. Think of it. The Legislature two years before, in 1778, had itself proposed to the people a constitution which the people rejected, largely because it contained no Bill of Rights, because it did not guarantee to the people any of those great and fundamental rights which the age-long struggle of the Anglo Saxon race had won as the foundation stone of popular liberty and self-government.

"Then the people had a constitutional convention of their own with delegates elected by the people especially for that purpose, and the first thing they did was to vote, 250 to 1, to propose a Bill of Rights.

"Now what did our forefathers think of this Right of Instruction? Read what they said in their instruction in 1764 where is the important part of it on the wall. They began by saying, 'By this charter, we the freeholders of the town, have delegated to you the power of acting in our public concerns, in general, as your prudence should direct you,' reserving to ourselves the constitutional right of expressing our minds and giving you such instructions upon important subjects as at any time we may judge proper; and then they gave them two pages of instructions.

Carefully Reserved Right.

"Mark that phrase, reserving to themselves, the people, their constitutional right of expressing their minds and giving to their representatives such instructions as they, the people, should desire. I bid you cherish that description of your constitutional right as never to be forgotten or to be impaired while you wish liberty to remain.

"Our forefathers did not think it lowered the character or dignity of their representatives thus to be instructed. In those earlier days before the Revolution when instructions were given thick and fast, some of the representatives from Boston were Sam Adams and Hancock, John Otis and James Bowdoin, names that will never perish from our history, and they gloried in their office as representatives of the people and instructed by them.

"No wonder then that the members of the Constitutional Convention which in 1780 made our present constitution solemnly stated that all power resides in the

LABOR TO IGNORE RECESS COMMITTEE

BROCKTON C. L. U. CALLS ON STATE FEDERATION TO ACT ON LEGISLATURE'S JUNKET.

The following resolutions were adopted last night by the Brockton Central Labor Union:

Whereas, the Brockton Central Labor Union and other unions in Massachusetts have denounced the scheme of a legislative recess committee on labor measures and pledged themselves to use every effort in their election districts to defeat those who would not aid us in securing decisive consideration by the present Legislature, as voted by our State convention in Lawrence; now, therefore, be it resolved:

That we request the Executive Committee of the State Branch, A. F. of L., to call into conference delegates from all Central Labor Unions and all local unions and all other labor organizations in Massachusetts, as we did on the overtime bill, to consider what attitude organized labor shall assume toward the said recess committee and legislators responsible for it, and to advance the work of organizing in election districts to protect the interests of the work producers politically, and, pending the action by such a conference and subject to it, we hold that,

Inasmuch as organized labor was foremost and unanimous in its declaration that it did not want a recess committee and would politically oppose those who favored it, a consistent, dignified and upper-hand attitude for labor to assume would be to repudiate the recess committee and its supporters and refuse to attend its sessions or to give it any countenance whatever.

It was voted to send a copy of these resolutions to other central bodies in Massachusetts and to invite action by other unions who might in any way need a copy of these resolutions.

[Notice—Secretaries of labor organizations which take action in this matter are requested to send to the LABOR EDITOR of this newspaper copies of all resolutions adopted.—Editor BOSTON AMERICAN.]

11 TRAPPED BY FIRE IN BROOKLINE

Eleven persons had narrow escapes, eight of them clambering or being carried down lofty ladders early to-day when fire broke out in the three-family apartment house, No. 64 Vilta lane, Brookline, owned by Mrs. Jane F. Jacobs of Roxbury.

The fire broke out in the bathroom on the second floor from some cause as yet unknown. On this floor lived the family of Daniel McCarthy, while on the third floor lived Thomas Ryan and his family, including a married son and his wife. On the first floor dwelt the family of Thomas Eagan.

When the fire was discovered the Eagan family made their escape easily. The alarm was rung in and ladder company 2 was thrown up ladders to the apartments above. Several of the Mckarty family were dodged to escape to the ground by the second ladder which had been thrown up to their flat.

The escape of the Ryan family was completely cut off, for by the time that they were aroused from their slumbers the halls and the lower part of the house were completely choked by smoke and great tongues of flame were leaping hither and thither, effectually cutting off that means of flight.

Ladder company 2 threw up a long thirty-foot ladder and down this both of the Ryans, father and son, carried their wives, assisted by the firemen. Captain Stott of the ladder company seized the ladder and bore Miss Mamie Ryan to safety.

Mr. Ryan's other sons, John, Stephen and Joseph, all athletic young men, soon clambered down the ladders to the ground.

Once the occupants of the building had been rescued the firemen had but little trouble in extinguishing the flames. The damage is reckoned at not more than $300.

THE ASSAILANT IN COURT

of Lewis Harris, charged with assault and battery with a loaded revolver with intent to kill Michael Cunningham, was called. Many of the spectators were apparently teamsters. Harris sat in the dock with the rest of the prisoners. When the clerk called his name he stood up. The charge was read to him and he sat down abruptly.

"Stand up," a court officer ordered. Harris got to his feet quickly and started to explain. He was interrupted by a request to plead and in a loud voice announced that he was not guilty. Harris was not nervous and did not seem to be in the least disturbed by his predicament.

Continuance for Week.

Patrolman William L. Stinson appeared as the complainant. He told Judge Fallon that the man who had been shot was in the hospital, that he was in a critical condition and the complainants were not prepared to go on with the case. At the request of Captain Wescott he asked continuance for a week.

After a consultation Judge Fallon held Harris in $1,000 for a hearing a week from to-day. Doctors at the City Hospital were unable to tell Captain Wescott to-day whether Cunningham would be able to appear in court in a week or in a month. It is a question of where the bullet had lodged and whether blood poisoning sets in.

Harris is twenty years of age, short and stockily built. He has Jewish features, dark complexioned and smooth shaven. His eyes are black and piercing, and he shifted his gaze from one part of the court room to another constantly. His hair was not combed, and he wore no collar.

Crowds Throng Court.

Crowds gathered round the courtroom door to catch a glimpse of Harris, but the officers hustled him into the van, taking no chances of letting the crowd get at him.

Anthony Hegeman and Fred P. Wilson, the guards who were with Harris when Cunningham was shot and were taken as witnesses, were not in court.

The police have summonsed the following witnesses: Athanasius Mistilliavy, No. 620 West Eighty street; Edward F. Hicks, No. 206 East Cottage street; John Long, No. 1221 Dorchester avenue; James Young, No. 78 Gates street; Edward J. Richardson, No. 309 Athens street, and John F. Barry, No. 209 West Eighth street.

CAPTAIN WESCOTT AROUSED.

Captain Wescott of the Broadway station has several men at work trying to locate the guard who fired three shots at a crowd of schoolboys on Granite street yesterday afternoon.

"I will get that man," Captain Wescott said to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter. "This matter has got to be sifted to the bottom. We will not stand for this sort of thing here and a stop is to be put to it at once. There will be no display of weapons during this affair if my men can stop it."

Over 150 teams and 200 men were sent out by the master teamsters to-day under strong police escort. Because of the anger over the shooting of yesterday the police are taking every precaution to prevent a serious outbreak. More strike-breakers are expected to take the place of those who have deserted.

Pressed on by 1,000 Men.

One thousand men, according to the police pressed around the three men, who were taken into custody after Michael Cunningham had fallen unconscious to the ground with a bullet in his back. Against the fence stood Harris with the revolver in his hand. Nearby were Anthony Hegeman and Fred P. Wilson, Harris's guards. Only the arrival of a patrol wagon filled with the police prevented serious consequences to the men.

They were rushed to the Broadway station. On the way Patrolman Powers detected Hegeman and Wilson tearing up papers and notebooks. They were stopped and all the pieces were taken in charge by the police. At the station search of Harris revealed a thirty-eight calibre revolver, partly loaded, and several slugs and cartridges.

Harris Says He Was Struck.

Harris said he was twenty years old and lived at No. 216 Rose street, New York. This is the story he told the police:

"These fellows were following us while we were on our way down to the steamer, and when one of them struck me on the head, I drew my gun and fired two shots. We were not under arrest of the police at the time.

"I have been driving for Fifield, Richardson & Co., and these two men, Hegeman and Wilson, have been guards. We got into the stable and when the horses were put up we saw no one about and we thought we could get down to the ship without any police protection. We had arrived at Fifield & Richardson's about 10.15, and stayed there fifteen minutes.

"I have been with the Fifield, Richardson Company since this strike commenced."

Anthony Hegeman, who gave his New York address as 189 Ninth avenue, said:

"We were followed by these men all the way down Kneeland street, and they got more and more abusive and I realized that something was going to happen, and I said: Boys, we'll have trouble; look out for yourselves, and then I buckled up against the fence. Wilson had been knocked down, and Harris, fearing serious assault, whipped out his revolver and fired."

Fifteen witnesses were examined by the police. Captain Ingan, because of the serious condition of Cunningham and the fact that Harris was charged with attempted murder, in charge of the investigation.

As nearly as could be learned, the three men decided that they did not care for the protection of the police, and, after putting up their horses at Fifield & Richardson & Co.'s stables, started down for the Seventh Ward. It was said that as they got down A street Harris kept his hand on his hip pocket. He was followed for a mile or so toward them down A street and kept calling them names. Wilson said that one of the men struck him in the face and knocked him down.

Then the strike-breakers backed up against the fence. Anthony Hegeman and Harris suddenly drew the revolver and fired at Cunningham, missing him. Cunningham turned to run away and a second shot struck him in the back. He fell, with a cry of "My God, boys, I'm shot." A moment later he was unconscious.

For the time being the few men about the strike-breakers were too much for every one to more. Then the crowd gathered. Three police officers on duty near by, Riley, Curtis and Foley, rushed for the scene. By their united efforts they drove back the crowd from the three men and placed all under arrest.

Cunningham Hurried to Hospital.

An ambulance rushed Cunningham to the City Hospital. His condition was such that no statement could be obtained from him then.

This was the second case of shooting that Captain Wescott was called upon to deal with during the day. In the afternoon it was reported to them that a guard on one of the Lewis Flanders teams had fired three shots at a crowd of boys who threw stones at the non-union men. A number of witnesses to the affair were secured, but the police were unable to find the man who is charged with the shooting.

The boys were on Granite street. They jeered at the men on the team and finally one or two of the lads threw stones. So far as is known none of the missiles hit anybody. The guard became enraged and without warning fired the shots. The boys ran and the driver of the team whipped up his horses and drove rapidly away.

The union teamsters are indignant over the shooting of Cunningham. Said Agent Daniel J. Tobin of the strikers:

"This is the second shooting affair since the strike began, and in this case, as in the other, the offenders were not the strikers, but the men who have been imported to break the strike. Yet the manager teamsters would like the public to believe that the men who are on strike are lawless.

"It is outrageous to let these strike-breakers carry weapons and use them so freely. Something should be done to prevent more shooting. There is no occasion for it. From the very beginning of the strike our men have been cautioned against violence of any sort, under penalty of expulsion from the union, and I don't believe any fair-minded man will deny that they have conducted themselves in a peaceful manner all the time."

Forrest Marston, twenty-four, claiming Revere as his home, and a strike-breaker employed by Tuttle & Co., of East Boston, one of the firms under the union ban, appears in court to-day to answer to a charge of carrying concealed weapons. The police declare that Marston frightened several pedestrians on Hanover street last night by flashing a revolver. It was loaded with ball cartridges, according to the police.

BIG MASS MEETING FOR OPINION BILL

people and that their representatives and senators are merely their agents, and are at all times accountable to them. This was the great doctrine of popular government which our fathers established.

Used Right in First Year.

"In the very year the Constitution came into existence the men of Boston instructed their seven Representatives, and one of them was the Speaker of the House; and again they did so the next year, and the next, as you will observe from the chart on the wall.

"Now read, if you please, in the last chart what they told in 1783 as to this right of instructions of which they were making use under our present Constitution. We confide in your integrity and good understanding to conduct the public affairs in our behalf in such manner as to promote the interest and safety of the Commonwealth at large and of this metropolis in particular. It is nevertheless our unalienable right to communicate to you our sentiments and when we shall judge it necessary or convenient to give you our instructions on any special matter. That we expect you will hold yourselves at all times bound to attend to and observe them."

"These are remarkable words. It was Samuel Adams who was on the committee to prepare those instructions. Mark well Samuel Adams' words. It is our unalienable right, that is, a right that can not be taken away, to communicate our sentiments and to give instructions.

"Remember that these words were spoken of the right which we now have under our present constitution, that they were spoken by one of the leading men, who made that constitution. If that great and precious right existed under the constitution in the beginning, then it exists for us to-day, while the constitution remains it will exist for our children's children.

Bill Carefully Drawn.

"Now the Public Opinion bill aims to provide a means by which the people may to-day exercise their minds and communicate their sentiments, but without giving instructions—a right so moderate, conservative and mild that a mother might safely give it to her child. The Public Opinion bill has been carefully drawn and safeguarded by the committee on election laws of which the chairman is one of the liberal and leading Republicans, well known throughout the State for his advocacy of sane and progressive legislation. Surely on this question all must realize that it is made of true metal and that his heart beats in harmony with the spirit of the fathers.

"The Public Opinion League is absolutely non-partisan. On this vital question of preserving the constitutional rights of the people we do not care, and you men on Boston do not care whether a man belongs to one party or to another, but so long as he is the champion for our rights we will give him our best support and a mighty God-speed in his efforts."

UNEARTH BONES OF MASTODONS

ALTOONA, Pa., April 25.—The bones of gigantic prehistoric animals which were unearthed a few days ago by a blast in the McLanahan limestone quarry are being examined by Professor O. A. Peterson of the Carnegie Institute of Pittsburg.

The bones lay in the limestone formation fully thirty feet below the surface of the earth, and are of various sizes. They show that the mastodons were humanese, the thigh of one being slightly more than ten and one-half inches in diameter and a joint ball nearly eight inches in diameter. The professor thinks the bones are those of a grown animal and its young.

BRYAN THROWN FROM CARRIAGE IN RUNAWAY

MORRISVILLE, Vt., April 25.—William J. Bryan approached the St. Johnsbury depot in a hurry to-day and narrowly escaped being hurt in a runaway. The train was scheduled to leave at 7 o'clock, and Mr. Bryan's carriage was at the summit of the long, steep hill, at the foot of which the station is located as the town clocks were striking the hour. The driver forced the horses to their best speed and a trace broke.

The animals were unable to stop as the depot platform was reached and the driver swung them sharply to the side of the building, stopping them on their haunches.

Mr. Bryan was shot out of the carriage by the swing was made, but landed right side up, with a luggage truck handy to stay his progress. He caught the train and was not injured in any way.

GET LEADER OF KIDNAP GANG

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Charged with kidnapping Salvator Saitti, the little son of Antonio Saitti, broker, of No. 325 West One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street, several months ago, Ignazia de Leonardo, was arrested early to-day by Central Office detectives after a desperate fight at the bottom of a shaft at No. 253 Hamilton avenue, Brooklyn. The Saitti boy at police headquarters picked de Leonardo out of a line of a dozen men, struck at him and cried: "That is the man who took me away."

The police say the capture of De Leonardo is a most important one, as they believe he is the leader of a band of Italian child-stealers who have made it a business of kidnapping the children of wealthy Italians.

"ROOSEVELT'S MEMORY BAD OR HE LIES"--DEBS

QUOTES SPEECH OF PRESIDENT IN ANSWER TO MOYER, HAYWOOD LETTER.

GIRARD, Kas., April 25.—Eugene V. Debs to-day reasserted that President Roosevelt declared and repeated that "Moyer and Haywood were implicated in murder, pronouncing their guilt in unmistakable words before their trial." In reply to the President's letter to Chicago labor organizations, Debs said:

"The President is guilty of a most extraordinary lapse of memory or deliberate falsehood. He now claims that he never said anything concerning the guilt of Moyer and Haywood. I quote from his speech of April 14, 1906, where he declared:

"'The wealthy man is no better than the so-called labor leader who clamorously strives to excite foul class feeling on behalf of some other labor leader who is implicated in murder.'

"I now challenge President Roosevelt to deny that he meant Moyer and Haywood in his charge of murder of a year ago. If he will, not name whom he meant he must stand branded [illegible] his own mouth with calumny and mendacity."

UNIONS OF NATION SCORE PRESIDENT

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, April 25.—The committee, consisting of Delegates Brown, Abrahamson and Henry, appointed by the New York Central Federated Union to call upon President Roosevelt in relation to the latter's attitude toward Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone, instead of leaving for Washington as expected, decided to abandon their mission, because the President refuses to meet them.

Sixty thousand members of organized labor in New York city will parade May 4 as a public rebuke to the President for his second attack on Moyer and Haywood, the miners' leaders awaiting trial in Idaho for murder.

In nearly all the big cities of the country similar labor meetings have been held, and the action of President Roosevelt denounced. Leaders in Boston, Chicago, Pittsburg, Cleveland, Cincinnati and Milwaukee are outspoken in their criticism of the President.

A dispatch from Milwaukee states that the labor leaders there have launched a plan for setting aside a day in May when work will be suspended and a demonstration held throughout the country as a protest against the position of the President. In Chicago a call was issued for a public meeting of protest to be held May 19 in Grant Park.

Ignored by President.

Secretary Bohn of the New York C. F. U., telegraphed to the President inquiring as to a convenient time at which he would receive the committee named in connection with him. Secretary Loeb replied that the President di not desire to see the committee personally, but suggested that the C. F. U. send to him in writing anything it wished to communicate.

To this telegram Secretary Bohm replied that he had some time ago written a letter to the President, in which the sentiments and desires of the C. F. U. had been expressed, and that no answer had been received. So reply has been received to this last telegram that passed between Secretaries Boehm and Loeb, believe that the President expects his letter to the Chicago Federation of Labor—and public yesterday—to be accepted as a reply to the queries and criticisms of the C. F. U. also.

Lawlessness in Arrests.

In commenting upon the President's published letter, prominent New York labor men said to-day that he had overlooked the main point in the protest of organized labor. There would not have been the great agitation by organized labor on the Moyer-Haywood case, if it had not been for the lawless manner of the arrest and deportation of the accused men. Labor would have raised no protest against the arrest and trial, if the constituted authorities had shown a proper respect for the legal rights of the accused at the time of their arrest.

The belief of the workingmen of the country is that President Roosevelt and those in whom he confided shut their eyes to the known facts, and not only sanctioned the kidnapping of Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone, but refused them the redress to which they, as citizens, were entitled.

When this was followed by the statement from the President that the miners' officials were "undesirable citizens" the workingmen believed they were justified in accusing against the course of one who is supposed to be the whole country's president and not a special pleader for the Mine Owners' Association.

THIS WOMAN IS ON TRIAL FOR HER LIFE

Here is her mental attitude:

"If you must write of me, don't, I pray you, make any such mistakes as were made in describing the costumes of the ladies of the Thaw case. I noted those and hoped no such blunders would be made in my case."

—Baroness De Massey to New York reporters.

HIDDEN MAN SLEW SIMON, DEFENCE OF BARONESS

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, April 25.—That a revealed assassin shot down Gustav Simon in his Broadway office is the contention of Baroness Anisia de Massey, whose trial is in charge of sifting him was continued to-day in the criminal branch of the Supreme Court.

Simon, the wealthy head of the Queen Shirt Waist Company, was unable to write down on him. He had just been in a quiet row with the Baroness de Massey over an alleged claim for $30 for designing waists, and as he was dying he said he believed she had shot him.

Who Owned the Revolver.

The person who killed Simon was concealed behind a glazed glass door, according to the contention of the defence, and escaped at about the same time the Baroness was going down stairs to the street.

In support of this theory it is said that the state has been unable to prove the ownership of the revolver found on the steps. Only detectives by the score have tried to fasten the ownership of the weapon on the Baroness, but in vain. So far as the prosecution has been able to learn, Baroness DeMassey did not own this pistol, and never had a deadly weapon in her life.

Assistant District Attorney Ely long ago recognized the importance of establishing the ownership of the weapon with which Simon was killed. He knew that if he could prove that it belonged to the Baroness de Massey it would probably convict her.

Simon Had Many Enemies.

Simon is said to have had many enemies, and Baroness de Massey was to-day prepared to prove that he was in the habit of disputing with employes over their pay. Several times he had severe fights, and more than once his life had been threatened.

After her quarrel with Simon, the Baroness could have walked into the hall and down the stairs without seeing that another person was concealed behind the door. That a hidden assassin was crouching there and fired the shot into Simon's body as she was going down the stairs will be the defence offered by the Baroness.

Particular About Her Gowns.

The fair prisoner appeared in court today as radiant as ever. She does not let the fact that she is on trial for her life disturb her, nor does she let it interfere with her determination to see that her gowns are properly described in the newspapers. She was in the same pleasant humor to-day, smiling affably on her attorney, Charles Lebarbier, and chatting with him in French.

So confident is the prisoner of her acquittal that she refuses to be worried. Like Harry K. Thaw, she keeps the minutes of her own trial and is continually directing her counsel as to cross-examining witnesses.

The members of the jury have taken an unusually deep personal interest in the baroness.

Jurors Watch Her.

It was noted to-day as on yesterday that most of the jurors had their eyes most of the time on the prisoner. This fact led to the rumor that they were observing her actions in court for the purpose of determining her mental condition.

Every little turn or smile or nod the baroness made was noted by the jurors. They watched her a great deal more than they did the witnesses on the stand.

STUDENT LAYS SUICIDE TRY TO 'IMPULSE'

"I am sorry I tried to end my life. It was an impulse that prompted me to do it—something that I cannot talk about," declared Manuel O. Molina, a student, who attempted suicide by drowning in Jamaica Pond, yesterday. According to the police of Station 13, Molina threw himself into the pond in sight of a young woman with whom he is said to have been strolling. He was dragged out of the water by Patrolmen Monfron and Hamsell.

"I don't want to talk about it," said Molina, who appeared much chagrined over the notoriety he had attained by his unsuccessful attempt to end his own life.

"I tried to end it all. I guess I did not know what I was doing. I am sorry now. I am a native of South America and have been in Boston since last October. I have not been well for sometime and, besides, have been worrying a great deal about a matter that I cannot talk to you about. My mother died when I was twelve years old and I have experienced severe mental troubles since then.

KAISER GIVES WAR CHALLENGE TO JOHN BULL

BERLIN, April 25.—A new war cloud is showing itself over Europe as the result of a brilliant coup by Kaiser William in establishing the German Orient Bank of Berlin as the financial backer of the new constitutional government of Persia. This move will check the plans of England and Russia for dividing Persia into two spheres under their immediate influence.

The old-time rivalry between Germany and England, which has already brought the two nations to the danger line owing to the activity of England in trying to break the triple alliance, has been greatly augmented by the Kaiser's shrewd move. England's anger is certain to be the more violent, because she had planned to make herself the financial prop of the Shah.

A preliminary agreement has been made by Herr Strauch, the German Minister to Teheran, for the German Orient Bank to support the National Bank of Persia at Teheran. When finally completed the arrangement will make Germany Persia's financial sponsor.

By inserting this footing in Persia, Germany is in a position to check England's and Russia's designs on Persia, and the situation in Middle Asia is completely changed. Emperor William has gained a distinct triumph in Asia, but his success is sure to resent upon European politics.

FIREBUGS PUT 100 IN PERIL TO ROB MINER

NEW YORK, April 25.—A fire believed to have been started by incendiaries with the object of robbery early to-day, endangered the lives of 100 tenants of a five-story tenement in East 126th street and resulted in the injury of three persons. Scores had narrow escapes. Several families were saved by stretching boards to a neighboring house. Two men and a woman were badly burned.

Thugs set the fire, in the hope that in the excitement they could rob the apartment of Carl Medes, an aged recluse, reported to be rich, who lives in the house. When the firemen reached the spot they could still detect the odor of burning grease in the halls.

Mrs. Addie Berwick told the police she heard men talking in the hall shortly before the blaze was discovered. She heard one say "Fire!" and another cautioned him to "shut up." A few moments later she detected flames.

RUTLAND, Vt., April 25.—Five million maple trees were tapped in Vermont forests the past season, in the syrup industry. This is a record. Sap is still running.

150 COTTAGES DESTROYED IN CAMP BLAZE

Station and Hotel at Mount Pleasant, Near Greenfield, Also Burned.

Special to the Boston American.

GREENFIELD, April 25.—Fire which started in the Spiritualist camp ground at Lake Pleasant, twelve miles from here, has burned 150 cottages, the Fitchburg Railroad station, a hotel, lake steamer, several rowboats, boathouse and other property, with a loss so far aggregating over $100,000. The fire was still raging at noon.

It is hoped that the flames will be checked by the deep ravine which divides the camp ground, thus saving the 150 other cottages and the costly Spiritualist Temple. If the flames jump the ravine there will be no way to save the remaining property, as there is no fire service except an ineffectual bucket brigade.

There are about 100 cottagers living at the campground the year round. Many of these have been burned out, saving only a few household effects.

The fire started in one of the occupied cottages at 5 a. m., accidentally, it is thought. Feeding on the flimsy, sun-dried wooden cottages the flames jumped rapidly from building to building, sweeping for a half-mile around the shore of the lake till checked by the ravine.

A brisk breeze fanned the flames. The intense heat soon made it impossible to get within fighting range of the fire. Help was asked from Miller's Falls and Turner's Falls, but companies of firemen who were sent out were able to do but little on account of the lack of fire service and apparatus.

ARREST WOMAN ON SONS' STORY

NEW YORK, April 25.—Mrs. Celia Isear, who said she lived at No. 1,832 Second avenue, was yesterday held in $1,500 bail for examination by Magistrate Cornell in Harlem Court, charged with the larceny of diamonds valued at $700 from Mrs. Rebecca Wilner of No. 67 St. Nicholas avenue. She was arraigned by Lieutenant Barfoes of the Central Office, who said that the robbery had been reported on February 7. Some of the jewels were buried in pawnshops.

Lieutenant Barnes and Probation Officer Helwig said the statements of Mrs. Isear's sons, Gustave and Benjamin, led to her arrest. They are in the reform school on Randall's Island for minor offences. The boys will be in court to testify against their mother.

REFUSE TO CUT BISHOP'S PAY

WORCESTER, April 25.—The Western Massachusetts diocese of the Episcopal Church, in annual convention at All Saints' Church yesterday, declined to accept the suggestion of Bishop Alexander H. Vinton, the presiding officer of the convention, that his salary be reduced from $5,000 to $4,000 a year.

The opinion of the convention, as voiced by a number of speakers, was that it would be inconsistent with the dignity of the diocese to take such action.

See Amazing Plot In Trail of Boston Man In Great Bank Theft

Local Broker Declared Chief in Daring Scheme to Loot Big Trust Company.

The name of the Boston man who originated the plot to steal $1,000,000 from the Trust Company of America of New York is known, and within forty-eight hours he may be placed under arrest.

He was intimate with Oliver M. Bennett of Boston, a former State Street broker, who is under arrest in connection with the theft, and it is claimed that William O. Douglass, the loan clerk, by whose arrest the police discovered facts which caused them to take Bennett into custody, was his tool.

The Boston man who engineered the scheme to loot the trust company is well known by all the financiers of this city. He has been prominent in political circles and he has figured in a great many legal cases in New England.

Connected With Bank Failure.

He was connected with the failure of the Revere National Bank of New York, and he has been identified with a number of questionable financial schemes in Boston.

Douglass, the loan clerk, is said to be made a scapegoat for this man and others who know the inside story of the proposed robbing of the trust company remain close-mouthed.

The arrest of the Boston man, officials of the trust company say, will reveal one of the most amazing financial conspiracies of the present century.

The Boston man has engaged a lawyer to look after his interests and has already paid him $2,500 as a retainer.

Bennett Friend of Hub Man.

Bennett and the Boston man became friends after the crash of a Boston trust company in which both were interested.

In New York it is said that the Boston attorney and Bennett planned if they were successful in the looting of the Trust Company of America to report their operations in connection with some other financial institutions.

Up to a late hour this Boston attorney could not be located. At his office it was declared that he had not been in since Monday. His wife said that at 4 p. m. he telephoned her that he would be home at 6 o'clock in the evening. At that hour he failed to appear. Detectives who watched his residence until an early hour today had their trouble for their pains. An official has since gave the impression that the lawyer who is being sought had left Boston.

Has Engaged Lawyer.

This man had arranged that Douglass, the loan clerk, was to steal $1,000,000 at the proper time.

A statement from Douglass is looked for soon, and it is believed he will further the evidence on which the Boston man will be arrested.

Oliver M. Bennett, the broker implicated with Douglass, is being held in $10,000 bail in the grand jury.

The young woman stenographer, whose name has been given as Miss Hopkins, denies absolutely that there is any name, and says she is the "company" in the firm of Douglass, Bennett & Co., the supposed local syndicate which has also been mentioned as Douglass, Bennett & Reardon.

Wall Street Amazed.

Wall street board with astonishment some of the details of the conspiracy which was planned against the Trust Company of America. It was a neat go when Douglass took the street inside from an employe and placed them with a broker as "tips" for profit. The latter decided to speculate on margin. He kept taking from the funds until he had taken more than a note.

It was then arrested by the Boston man that Douglass as a substantial sum had been taken the only way to even up was to take evidence on which the Boston man will be arrested.

The scheme was to get the money already lost Douglass acquiesced to the plan.

'MY HUSBAND TOOL OF HUB LAWYER'

Mrs. W. O. Douglas, wife of loan clerk under arrest for complicity in gigantic bond theft, loyally stands by husband, declaring real blame rests on big syndicate.

FARM HAND SUSPECT IN MARVIN CASE RELEASED

Mystery Surrounding Kidnapped Boy Apparently as Deep as Ever.

DOVER, Del., April 25.—Frank H. Butler, the farmer arrested and held under suspicion of having killed Robert Marvin, was released from custody at 10:30 this morning.

An absolute split between the Pinkerton men and State detectives who have been working for days to unravel the mystery of the disappearance of the little boy on March 4, caused the investigation today to continue on two absolutely different lines. Squads of men employed by the State detectives, who caused the arrest of Frank Butler, are making a fresh search of the woods near the Marvin home, hoping to unearth the body of the missing boy.

Theory Ridiculed.

The Pinkertons ridicule the theory of the State detectives and cling to the idea that the boy is in the hand of kidnapers, although they admit they are helpless so far as producing the boy is concerned.

The latter theory, which the detectives has almost reached the assured stage, is demanded by the Pinkertons that the State detectives who arrested Butler stop "sweating" the man and have him liberated by Officers Hawkins and Gillis of Delaware and Lum and Woodruff of New Jersey. Assistant Superintendent Lintner of the Pinkerton agency in Philadelphia warned Butler not to talk to the State detectives.

Contradictions Trivial.

Although Butler was put through an examination until he was exhausted, only on minor points did he contradict himself. Pinkerton agents declare. Suspicion is based on one statement from Butler and another from his companion, Caldwell, when confronted with a gun he admitted drove the last load of goods from the Marvin farm on March 4. Caldwell's story of the mysterious sack of "corn" in which he believed the boy's body was concealed, was the principal argument against Butler.

The State detectives believe Butler ran over the boy, accidentally killed him and disposed of the body because he feared to confess to the accident.

Still Search for Body.

Butler, in one statement, admitted that something dropped off the wagon near a "boggy place." The goods mentioned by Butler as dropped off the wagon differed in mysterious lots of being held up by two men organized.

Detectives Hawkins and Gillis began their search for the body in that district, believing that it is all their belief that the remains of little Marvin will be discovered in the vicinity.

PITTSBURG HAS CREW IN PERIL MONSTER FIRE ON STEAMSHIP

By Boston American Leased Wire.

PITTSBURG, April 25. The large acreage in Spring Garden avenue, Allegheny, covered by the various warehouses, plaster, cattle yards and packing houses of the William Zeller Company, was visited by a disastrous fire late last night which did damage amounting to over $300,000.

The origin of the fire is thought to have been caused electric light wires. The big plant, covering some two acres with Pinkerton agents in charge of the buildings, was one of the largest and most thoroughly equipped in Western Pennsylvania.

The loss is partly covered by insurance placed in seventy-five different companies.

Firemen working in clouds of stifling smoke were suddenly blown by the draught of a hot fire, and several hundred gallons of water swept over them. None was hurt.

WIFE FAILS TO STOP HUSBAND'S WEDDING

NEW YORK, April 25.—Waived by an anonymous letter that her husband would wed again, Mrs. Robert Croffitt of Brooklyn appealed to the police late last night to stop the marriage. Which she said was to take place in St. Agnes's Catholic Church. A policeman went to the church, where the rector said that only half an hour before he had married Robert Croffitt and Miss Catherine Carroll. Mrs. Croffitt declares she will seek to have her husband arrested for bigamy.

HALIFAX, N. S., April 25. The steamer Universe, loaded from New York to Louisburg, in passing at West Point, a few miles west of Canso. The sea is very rough and none of the crew has yet been able to leave the ship.

It cannot be learned from shore how many are on board. The steamer Olive has started from Canso for the wreck.

The Universe is a Norwegian steamer of 1,934 tons. She was built in 1898 at Sunderland, Eng., for Hjalmar Bord of Lonsberg, Norway.

FLOOD BANKS OF KENNEBEC

Special to the Boston Americans.

AUGUSTA, Me., April 25.—All the wharves here creep, one are under water and there are six feet of water on the Kennebec dam. The water is rising an inch an hour. Snow melting in the woods bordering on the upper Kennebec is causing the freshet. The total rise of the river within the past twelve hours is twenty inches.

PRESIDENT OFF FOR GALA START OF EXPOSITION

Reviews Warships of All Nations in Remarkable Jamestown Pageant To-morrow.

THOUSANDS AT NORFOLK

By Boston American Leased Wire.

JAMESTOWN EXPOSITION GROUNDS, Norfolk, Va., April 25.—Norfolk is the world's center to-day! Instead of being a mere port it is an overpopulated city into which travelers come every hour. The navies of the world are dropping their anchors in its harbor.

A varied fleet of vessels, from warships to ragboats, is steaming down the Potomac River from the Washington to-day, bearing distinguished visitors to the opening of the exposition. At 2:30 p. m. the President and his party leave on the Mayflower, escorted by two gunboats and a revenue cutter. Secretary Metcalf and other officials go soon after.

Along Norfolk's streets the tongues of all parts of the globe are heard. And beneath the whispering pines and ancient oaks on the low-lying shores of Hampton Roads people by the thousand are hurrying in every conveyance possible, from electric cars to old wagons, to view the buildings and grounds of the exposition that will be opened by the President of the United States to-morrow. The opening exercises will be impressive and beautiful in undoubted.

A Memorable Opening.

The opening day will live long in the memory of those who witness the functions that will mark it. They will be in keeping with the celebration of the founding of the settlement that crudled this country.

The President will review the warsaine of all nations of the harbor. After that he will see from the reviewing stand on Lee's Parade in the exposition grounds one of the largest and most remarkable military organizations ever known. Led by General Fred Dent Grant and his staff, United States soldiers and sailors and foreign marines and sailors will march past the stand. It will be the first occasion of such foreign troops parading in review before the executive of this country.

Exposition Is Incomplete.

But the buildings, grounds and exhibits of the exposition are not completed. It will be at least three weeks before the exposition will be in good shape for the public. The buildings are being confronted by the terrible weather, and for a long time there were inadequate transportation facilities.

It has been hard to secure enough laborers and only a splendid man who can go to Norfolk can get a job right away.

It is estimated that 5,000 men are working within the grounds and still the cry for workers is insistent. Yesterday the men were taken off the work of preparing the exhibits and were used exclusively in paving streets and finishing buildings.

Great Naval Display.

All this will not bother the public on the opening day. The great naval display in the harbor in full view of the magnificent boulevard that stretches between the State buildings and the harbor, the length of the grounds; the military pageant on the parade ground and the President's review will be three such big features that the crowd will care for little else.

The Jamestown Exposition is going to be great show. In its naval and military features it will be the biggest show the world ever saw. But even a majority of the board of directors of the fair felt a week ago that the opening day should see a big city. This view did not prevail and the exposition will open in an unfinished state.

PANIC AFTER MATCH; SEVERAL CRUSHED

MANCHESTER, N. H., April 25.—Caused by the younger persons in the crowd at a show that attended the wrestling match in Mechanics' Hall last night, a panic occurred in the narrow exit from the hall and several were badly crushed, although none seriously injured. The match was won by Emil Maupes, who defeated John Mueller.

PICKPOCKET GANG TAKEN AFTER FIGHT

Police Believe 3 Men Under Arrest Have Reaped Rich Harvest on Hub Cars.

In the sensational arrest of James O. Brien, David Crane and Thomas Feeney, all well-known police characters, the police believe they have the organized gang of pickpockets who have terrorized electric car passengers the past few weeks. Today several victims identified the men.

It was through the picking last evening of Alex Wineberg's pocket that the police got track of the men. Winneberg lives at 110 Lindale street, Dorchester. He was on the rear platform of a Washington street car when he felt a jostling and his pocketbook with $90 was missed. He reported to the police at once.

Captured After Fight.

Inspectors Barr and Smith saw the suspicious actions of the three men and they grabbed Crane and Feeny, O'Brien getting away. The other two wrestled from the inspectors, jumped another car and ordered the motorman to put on full speed. The officers caught up and after a rough and tumble fight captured their men. Gleery caught O'Brien, who ran away.

Winneberg to-day identified O'Brien and Crane.

William Root, No. 4 Bassett court, Cambridge, who was on a Washington street car April 23 and lost $15, identified O'Brien.

Stephen Loughlin, 185 Charles street, who lost $242 last Friday, identified as one of Feeney's victims.

Arthur M. Seibert, Somerville, who on April 11 left the Pleasant street Subway for a Tremont street car, was relieved of $85, identified O'Brien and Crane. Daniel C. Linehan, 1258 Commonwealth avenue, who on April 23 was relieved of a $100 and a $64.80 check on a Brookline car, Washington street, identified O'Brien.

Victims of Pickpockets.

Other pickpocket victims are Edward J. Farmer of Maryland, who lost $2, a twelve-trip tickets on the Boston & Maine Railroad, one from Waltham to Boston and the other from Boston to Somerville, while on a Huntington avenue car; Samuel T. Hittenpelender, No. 13 Reid's block, Cambridge, relieved of $28 and a $15 check while on a Berkeley street car. They will be called to identify the men.

O'Brien is twenty-five years old, a resident of the West End. He was released from the House of Correction a few months ago. Crane is twenty-seven years old, lives in the South End, now on probation for pickpocketing. Feeney, thirty-one years old, was released a few days ago after a four years sentence for pickpocketing. All three men were well dressed and had considerable money in their possession when arrested.

WOMAN FIGHTS GROTON SCHOOL OVER OLD SHANTY

COACHMAN'S WIFE DEFIES FACULTY; A SPECIAL TOWN MEETING CALLED.

Special to the Boston American.

GROTON, April 25.—Because of the successful fight one lone woman has waged against aristocratic Groton School and all the millions that are behind that institution, a special town meeting will be held to-night.

The woman is Mrs. Ellen M. Powell, once owner of a substantial cottage and outbuildings in the centre of the school's domains. Three years ago the house was burned. The ruins are still there. Groton School wants them moved and Mrs. Powell does not. Therefore the town meeting.

Its avowed object is to decide whether an effort will be made to compel Mrs. Powell to remove the remaining sections of the house, the two henhouses and the shed, the trustees say, that has been an eyesore to Groton School for years and the barn.

Wanted House Vacated.

Long ago Dr. Endicott Peabody, principal of Groton school, where President Roosevelt's son Kermit is now a student, and where Theodore, jr., hovered between life and death for many days while he was there, wanted the Powells to move away and let the school have the property.

Charles Powell was then coachman for William Amory Gardner, teacher from choice, possessor of much wealth and nephew by marriage of Mrs. John L. Gardner, of Boston. He did not own the property, Mrs. Powell declared.

Mr. Gardner talked with Powell. The coachman said, "You'll have to see my wife; she owns the property. That was the time when the fruit shanty was let and an Italian vender took possession and made many pennies from the pupils. The Peabody and others of the teaching staff, which included Grafton D. Cushing of Boston, wanted less fruit sold to the boys. The request to have the shanty vacated was not couched in the diplomatic language that it should have been and Mrs. Powell's ire was stirred.

Coachman's Wife Defiant.

Mr. Gardner wrote to Mrs. Powell. She sought to see Mr. Gardner; he wasn't to be seen. In his letter he had mentioned the fact that Mr. Powell was in his employ.

"You may discharge my husband from your employ, but you cannot discharge me from the property that is rightfully mine," she wrote back. In the same letter she said that not only was the right dread to remain, but that she intended to rent another building as a blacksmith shop. Groton school gasped and was shocked immeasurably.

Then commenced the fight that will be continued to-night in the special town meeting.

After the house was burned the family moved away going to Highland street, Boston. The property was left just as it was and for three years Groton school and Dr. Peabody have been annoyed.

Appeal to Selectmen.

As a last resort came the appeal to the Selectmen who called the meeting. On the board are Jeremiah Ryan, a Democrat, Mr. Whitehill and Frank Torrey. Mr. Torrey is said to favor Groton School, while Mr. Powell looks upon Mr. Ryan as her friend.

Accompanied by her counsel, Mrs. Powell arrives in Groton to-night to fight. "And I will fight," she said, "as they will very well see when I have started. They may think I don't know my rights, but I do, and I mean to have them."

There will probably be a large crowd at the town hall for the word of what may happen has gone the rounds.

WOMAN DOCTOR IS BANKRUPT, OWES $10,000

Dr. Alice Lillienthal of No. 26 Beal street, Brookline, died a petition in bankruptcy to-day in the United States Court. Her debts, she says, amount to $10,649.72, and her assets she gives as $50, although it a list she filed she admits that she has property valued at $235 more, including wearing apparel and household goods worth $120, books and pictures valued at $50, $20 worth of drugs, and surgical instruments worth $25. Outstanding accounts of $50 she thinks are the only assets her creditors are entitled to.

Of the debts $1,649.72 are unsecured and there is a note for $10,000 and interest, held by Henrietta H. White and Henry White, Cambridge.

This note is thus described by Dr. Lillienthal in an entry on the back of her petition: "Given as endorser on note given by me. Lillienthal, said note having been secured by mortgage, mortgage since foreclosed, leaving a balance of $10,000 and interest."

The largest unsecured claim is that of Lucy Colby of No. 32 Fenway, who says Dr. Lillienthal is indebted to her in the sum of $1,000. Dr. Lillienthal is represented by Walter A. Webster of No. 53 State street.

WOMAN CUTS HEART WITH BREAD KNIFE

WAVERLY, N. Y., April 25.—Mrs. Ellen Mooney committed suicide this morning by stabbing herself in the heart with a bread knife. Illness is given as the reason for the act.

HE BEAT ME, SAYS WIFE OF 'TOM' PEIRCE

Samuel H. Hudson, counsel for Mrs. Alice Crowninshield Rogers Pierce, who was yesterday granted a decree of absolute divorce in the Essex County Superior Court at Salem from her husband, Thomas W. Pierce, is conferring with the trustees of the Pierce estate preparatory to filing a bill for the custody of the son of Mr. and Mrs. Pierce and for alimony.

At the trial yesterday, at which Mr. Pierce made no contest, John J. Kelly, a coachman, testified that he had heard Mr. Pierce use cruel and abusive language to his wife, and also to having seen him strike her in the face with his closed fist and to seeing him push her down an embankment.

Mrs. Pierce's brother, John W. Rogers, testified that Mr. Pierce drove his wife out of the house one night after a dinner party, and that he only induced her to return by considerable persuasion.

Mrs. Pierce followed her brother on the witness stand. "When did you notice that your husband's treatment began to change toward you?" asked Attorney Hudson.

"In the Fall of 1904."

"When was the first instance?"

"It was about the first of October. We were in the stable yard at the time and my husband struck me."

"With what did he strike you?"

"With his closed fist, several times."

"When did he abuse you again?"

"It was after the dinner party that my brother spoke of. He drove me from the house and I went to the stables to get my horse and drive to my sister's home in Salem. My husband followed me and pursuaded me to return."

O'MEARA GIVES POLICE SHAKE-UP OF THE YEAR

Fifty-Six Men Ordered to Pack Up to Move to New Stations—Nineteen Draw Promotion Prizes.

Police Commissioner O'Meara stirred things up in his department yesterday. When he took office a year ago he promised the department a surprise, and although it was a long time coming, those affected found it entirely adequate.

He promoted Sergeant Daniel F. Eagan of the Back Bay station to a lieutenancy at South Boston, advanced Patrolmen Michael H. Crowley, Murray Munro, Daniel G. Murphy, Cornelius F. Keegan, John S. Ridlon and Frank H. Thompson to the rank of sergeant, and promoted Reserve Patrolmen Fitzmaurice, Richard J. Galvin, Daniel Dineen, Joseph W. F. Wentworth, James E. Mackey, Patrick J. Kennedy, George Stewart, John Jordan, John H. Becker, James N. Cullen, James T. Monahan and John G. Murphy to the rank of patrolman.

Thirty-Seven Transfers.

As for the transfers, there are thirty-seven of them; one captain, one lieutenant, seven sergeants, eighteen patrolmen and two reserve men. Captain Thomas F. Evans goes from Division 5 to Division 3, and Lieutenant William H. Allen from Division 12 to Division 5.

The sergeants transferred are Richard J. Neagle, 1 to 8; Daniel J. Sweeney, 4 to 7; William F. Maguire, 1 to 11; George M. Carr, 3 to 1; Ernest A. Taylor, 3 to 12; James E. O'Brien, 4 to 11; Harrison B. Vinal, 8 to 11; Patrick Byrne, 10 to 11; Patrick J. O'Neil, 10 to 1; George B. Guard, 11 to 4; Frank Arnold, 11 to 1; Joseph L. Cassidy, 13 to 10; James S. Pendergast, 14 to 11; Thomas F. Goode, jr., 14 to 16; Jeremiah F. Gallivan, 16 to 1.

No Captains Named.

No captains were appointed to fill the vacancies caused by the deaths of Captains O'Labor and Curran. This is said to be because the commissioner feels himself blocked by the veterans' preference act, which places two men on the eligible list when he does not deem the right men to command the stations at present. Therefore Lieutenant Thomas H. Yeaton acts as captain of the East Boston station and Lieutenant Daniel Ritter at the East Dedham street station.

Incidentally each of the men promoted is transferred.

The commissioner has nothing to say about the shift except that he did it "for the good of the service."

$150,000 FIRE IN NAVY YARD AT KITTERY

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., April 25.—After the hardest kind of a three hours' fight on the part of the Navy Yard fire department, assisted by an engine company and steamer from this city, fire, which at one time threatened the destruction of the entire Navy Yard, was confined to the paint shop building in which it originated. This four story building is an almost total loss and the money damage is over $150,000. During the fire fighting, Corporal Agnew of the Marine Corps had a shoulder broken by a ladder falling upon him.

The fire was discovered shortly before 7 in building No. 20, the two upper stories of which are occupied as a pattern shop by the department of steam engineering, and the two lower stories as a store house. The flames were just breaking through the roof.

There was a strong northwest wind and the upper part of the building was soon a mass of flames. The navy yard department was slow in responding to the alarm and the fire gained good headway. It looked as though it would extend to the ordnance building, machine shop, joiner, and blacksmith shops of the department of steam engineering.

To the right of the building, within 100 feet, was the general store, in which was held the Russian-Japanese peace conference. Fortunately the wind was blowing away from this building. It was soon seen that the fire was getting the upper hand of the yard department, and assistance was summoned from Portsmouth.

Chief Hankins sent Colonel Sise Steamer 2 and hose wagon. The trip was made in about thirty minutes, but on arrival at the yard there was considerable delay in getting a location for the steamer. In spite of the fifteen streams of water poured into the building, it was 10 o'clock before the fire was under control. The fire was confined to this one building, the two upper stories of which are a mass of ruins, while the lower stories were badly gutted.

The cause of the fire is a mystery, but is supposed to have originated from spontaneous combustion.

He was accused of beating his way and sentenced to the penitentiary on a charge of vagrancy.

A group of travelling salesmen on the train took up a collection for the boy and offered to pay his fare, but it is said, the detective refused the money. The salesmen were indignant, and reported the case to the Governor.

When you have a Bad Breath—Wake up!

WAKE Up! It's time to take a Cascaret,
—When the friend you speak to turns his face the other way,
—When your tongue is coated,
—When you have Heartburn, Belching, Acid Risings in throat,
—When Pimples begin to peep out,
—When your Stomach Gnaws or Burns,
—That's the time to check coming Constipation, Indigestion and Dyspepsia.

One single Candy Cascaret will do it if taken at the right minute, just when you first feel the need of it.

Do it now.

Cascarets don't Purge, nor Weaken, nor waste Digestive Juices in flooding out the Bowels, like Salts, Castor Oil, "Physics."

But,—they act like Exercise on the Muscles that shrink and expand the Intestines, thus pushing the Food on Naturally to its Finish.

When your Bowel-Muscles grow flabby they need Exercise to strengthen them—not "Physic" to pamper them.

Cascarets provide the bracing tone that is needed specifically by the Bowel-muscles.

Then carry the little ten-cent "Vest Pocket" box constantly with you, and take a Cascaret whenever you suspect you need it.

One Cascaret at a time will promptly cleanse a foul Breath, or Coated Tongue, thus proving clearly its ready, steady, sure, but mild and effective action.

Have the little 10c Emergency box of Cascarets constantly near you!

All Druggists sell them—over ten million boxes a year, for six years past.

Be very careful to get the genuine, made only by the Sterling Remedy Company and never sold in bulk. Every tablet stamped "CCC."

CHICAGO WILL KEEP OUT SLAYER GUILD PARDONED

Man Who Killed Father and Mother May Be Sane Now, Say Authorities, But Will Take No Chances.

final insane in that State for the killing county authorities are indignant over the news that Governor Guild of Massachusetts has pardoned Peter O. King, who has been confined in the Hospital for the Criminal Insane in that State for the killing of his father and mother at Sturbridge, September 12, 1899, on condition that he leave Massachusetts and come to this city. He has a brother here who is willing to take care of him and provide him with a home and employment, and the pardon was granted on the ground that his insanity was temporary, caused by the excessive use of alcoholic liquors, and that experts have testified that he has recovered his sanity, but officials here take but little stock in the recovery theory.

"Who says such a man is harmless," asked Lieutenant Howard, in charge of the Chicago detective bureau. "It was certainly some of those Eastern experts, and those fellows had best go well outside their opinions entirely to the East.

"Killed his father and mother while drunk and is now harmless! He may be, but King may have to present some credentials to establish a residence in Chicago.

"We will see if we can't send him back," said County Attorney Lewis.

"If King was a pauper we could cause the arrest of any one engaged in bringing him in. I can't say what we can do about this case now, but I will take the matter up with County Agent Belmont tomorrow. Perhaps we can stop him at the border line of some city. Certainly King is not a promising citizen, and we will keep him out if possible."

BLOWS WOMAN OFF ROOF 40 FEET TO GROUND

Wind Throws Man Down and Breaks His Hip; Damages Church Steeples.

With a fierce gale blowing at the rate of fifty miles an hour, Boston and the entire eastern section of New England was swept by a storm yesterday that left destruction in its wake, numerous serious accidents to persons and much damage to property being reported as its result. Accompanying the windstorm came heavy rain during the earlier hours of the day.

In South Boston Mrs. Mary Harrington, sixty-one, was blown off a roof at No. 62 Dresser street, and was badly hurt, and in front of the Tremont Theatre, Charles S. Clark, sixty-five, of No. 67 Pleasant street, was lifted up into the air and dropped again with such force that he broke his hip.

Two suburban churches lost part of their high statues, scores of signs are down, windows broken and much minor damage reported.

Trees of considerable diameter were twisted off as by a cyclone. Yards of fences were blown down, and the falling sickness among billboards amounted to a epidemic.

In East Boston a large gilded cross surmounting the steeple of the Assumption Catholic Church was loosened by the wind and sent crashing to the ground.

One of four small steeples on the Umbarina Church St Watertown was shaken from its fastening and hung suspended in mid air.

Shipping also suffered and hardly a vessel moved from its moorings all day.

In Stamford, Me., the gale blew off twenty feet of a big iron smokestack at the plant of the Stamford Light and Power Company, and it crashed through a heavy plank roof.

At North Attleboro a large plate glass window in the Badaracco Block was blown into the street, causing damage of $60.

An awning over the Central Coal and twelve feet high, over Armour & Co.'s office, Charlestown, was blown to the street.

MELLEN AND BLISS ENTER LEASE FIGHT

Presidents of Railroads at Odds Over Springfield Right of Way Plan.

That the idea of further beautifying the city of Springfield by removing the New Haven tracks from along the bank of the Connecticut and having them pass through the city alongside the Boston & Albany tracks originated as far back as 1904, and that when President Mellen of the New Haven had expressed his satisfaction with the plan Vice-President Van Etten of the Central had said that the New York Central would do as much for Springfield as the New Haven road would do, but that later Springfield had been unable to get anything from Van Etten better than vague, general or indefinite statements, were among the things set before the Committee on Railroads at the State House yesterday by Nathan D. Bill of Springfield's Bridge Commission.

Vice-President Van Etten, present in the committee room, expressed his willingness to answer any questions, but preferred to make his formal statement on Friday, when President Mellen of the New Haven road and President Bliss of the Boston & Albany corporation will also appear.

Van Etten Elusive.

"Before making my report, last December," said Mr. Bill, who told of the willingness of the old to spend $250,000 on the improvements, "I waited on Vice-President Van Etten in the hope of having the matter fixed up to the satisfaction of all.

"Every time I tried to get Mr. Van Etten to meet President Mellen, however, Mr. Van Etten got away from me. When I did finally manage to corner the head of the Boston & Albany division of the New York Central, he said to me:

"'Well, you are a persistent cuss, aren't you?'

"Then he told me that they could have the right of way on the level, but he left the terms of it vague. He indefinitely said he thought for a moment that the New Haven road would take any chance of being thrown on the New York Central.

City Asks Enabling Act.

"In concession I had to tell him that if Springfield couldn't get an agreement from them, we were coming before the Legislature, and here we are, asking for an enabling act."

At a previous hearing, representatives of the Central intimated that the proposition to let the New Haven in on the Boston & Albany right of way originated with the head of the New Haven system.

800 OUT IN BIG THREAD STRIKE

PROVIDENCE, April 25.—Seven hundred employes of the carding departments of the J. & P. Coats Thread Company's big plant in Pawtucket and Central Falls struck yesterday for a 10 per cent. advance. One hundred mule spinners and back boys were thrown out of work by the strike, and all the mills of the company may have to shut down unless the difficulty is adjusted soon.

The strike, which was started in the thread mill Monday when twenty-six carders went out, has spread rapidly. If the plant is shut down it means idleness for nearly 2,000 hands. The strikers are mostly women who are getting about $6 per week.

Judging from past experience, it will require more than a week for the strikers to capitulate. The J. & P. Coats Company is managed by a board of directors in Scotland.

MY SON IS NOT A CANDIDATE

—MRS. W. F. TAFT

By Boston American Leased Wire.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 25.—"I do not want my son to be President; he is not a candidate," smilingly declared Mrs. W. F. Taft, mother of Secretary of War William Taft, today. "The Supreme Bench, where my boy would administer justice, is my ambition for him. His is a judicial mind, you know, and he loves the law. Added to these are good health and an unfailing good nature."

Mrs. Taft, a beautiful matron of serenity, was attired in a handsome black embroidered gown with a dainty cap of white—a woman of the old school with whom traces of early beauty still remain.

"To be President is a dreadful responsibility and a very trying position," she continued. "He had not sought to be a candidate for it. It has been thrust upon him. I know that he himself does not want it, that his views are the same as mine."

DYING, SAVED BY 'MIRACLE'

Special to the Boston American.

LEWISTON, Me., April 25.—Thought to be dying of cerebro-spinal meningitis, and with his grief-stricken family standing at his bedside, Raymond Wheeler, the twelve-year-old son of J. A. Wheeler of College street, by a seeming miracle suddenly came out of a delirium which had lasted three days, opened his eyes and asked for water, and began to recover. He is now assured.

Lewiston is suffering from an epidemic of the dreaded disease and eight new cases were reported yesterday.

X-RAY EXPERT DIES MARTYR TO SCIENCE

Fuchs, an X-ray expert of international reputation and one of the original exponents of its use in the country, died here yesterday afternoon of what the surgeons call "X-ray cancer," induced by burns received two years ago during his scientific researches.

BELFAST, Me., April 25.—Grover C. Gray was yesterday arraigned on the charge of putting paris green in his brother's coffee at East Troy Sunday. He was bound over to the September term of the Supreme Court. Bail, fixed at $1,000, was furnished by his father and an uncle.

BREAD EPITAPH SCORES WOMAN

WATERBURY, Ct., April 25.—Frightened because of hieroglyphics on her newly baked bread, Mrs. Ezekiel Bronson moved from the Ransom place and her husband found a cheerless hearthstone. A note read:

"Ben—You will find us down at Pettingill's from now until I get shelter."

Mrs. Bronson baked Sunday, trying an old brick oven. There were imprints on the bottom of the loaves that read:

May she rest in peace.
Died May 1, in her 30th year.
Glory Hallelujah.

It was found that the bottom of the old oven was a portion of a tombstone.

DRANK WHISKEY AND FELL DOWN DEAD

BURLINGTON, Vt., April 25.—Peter J. Smith of Middlebury, in Dorfey's saloon yesterday, ordered a drink of whiskey, which he drank, and fell down dead. The health officer stated that death was due to alcoholism.

8-STORY BUILDING FALLS.

SAYS RICH HUSBAND HIT HER IN FACE

Pretty Young Bride of John Dorey Asks Separation on Grounds of Cruelty.

Promises of a life of ease and luxury, says Mrs. Minnie E. Dorey, of No. 372 Lemartine street, Jamaica Plain, were repeatedly made to her in the two weeks courtship at the conclusion of which she was led to the altar by John Dorey, the aged and wealthy Somerville contractor, whom she is now suing for separate maintenance, charging cruel and abusive treatment and non-support. The suit is being heard to-day in the Probate Court, East Cambridge.

"Two weeks after our marriage," says Mrs. Dorey, "my husband began to abuse me, and up to four months ago, when I left his home at No. 36 Temple street, Somerville, I led the life of a dog. Once during a whist game, when my partner and I were one point ahead, my husband suddenly became angered and threw the cards on the floor, and without a word of warning struck me with his fist full in the face."

Mrs. Dorey, a tall, slender, striking brunette of twenty-three years of age, was Miss Minnie Gunning before her marriage, and is widely known in Jamaica Plain, where she is now living with her mother, Mrs. Mary A. Gunning. The couple were married in August, 1905, and have one child.

Mrs. Dorey is represented by Lawyer Peter Daly, while Augustine J. Daly, former Mayor of Cambridge, is counsel for Mr. Dorey.

This is Mr. Dorey's second matrimonial venture. He has two sons, who are older than his wife. They are now contesting the contracting business which netted him a fortune estimated at $150,000.

BURGLAR ROBS CHINAMAN

Attacked by a negro with a hatchet and roused of $10, Lee Wan, proprietor of a laundry at No. 1,154 Harrison avenue, Roxbury, is nursing a severe scalp wound to-day. Wan describes his assailant as about twenty years old.

According to Wan, the negro entered his bedroom in the rear of the laundry, grabbed a hatchet and after demanding money struck him on the head. Wan gave his assailant $10, and the negro fled. Wan's injury is not serious.

WOMEN WITH BUCKETS SAVE N. H. BUILDINGS

GILMANTON, N. H., April 25.—Organizing a bucket brigade, the family of M. J. Carr, including the women members, saved many public buildings on the place of construction last night, after the brewery was completely destroyed and 100 fowl roasted to death. The fire is supposed to have been set by tramps.

REPUBLICANS PLOT TO KEEP OKLAHOMA OUT

WASHINGTON, April 25.—A scheme in which Speaker Cannon is the most prominent figure, to keep Oklahoma out of the Union until after the next Presidential election, is under way, and President Roosevelt has been asked to join in it.

Oklahoma will be one of the biggest of the Western States and she is entitled to two Senators and five Representatives, which would give her seven votes in the electoral college. It is quite within the range of possibilities that her vote might decide the Presidential election.

When the Democrats swept Oklahoma last year it was a frightful shock to the Republican leaders. They had not been very optimistic, but they had hoped that if they did not carry Oklahoma at least the majority would be small enough to give them a fighting chance in the future. Oklahoma's Democratic majority was such as to make it certain that the Republicans had no chance whatever in the near future.

Thereupon the leaders began to scheme. Many of them are doubtful of defeating Taft next year unless Roosevelt is the candidate. At any rate, they do not want to take any chances. There were some conferences, at which the watchword was "Oklahoma must be kept out of the Union at any cost."

GIVES YACHT TO HOSPITAL

Mrs. I. G. Burnham, long a generous supporter of the Boston Floating Hospital, has given the charity, as a memorial to her late husband, the steam yacht "Pilgrim," with all its equipment, the engines of which, being well adapted to the use of the new boat, will be immediately removed and installed.

Last year a sufficient sum of money to pay for the new boat was not raised, and the trustees are still working for subscriptions for the so-called "New Boat Fund." It is the hope of the trustees that this same public will supplement the generous gift of Mrs. Burnham and enable them this year, not only to meet the expenses of operating, but to wipe out the debt on the splendid new boat soon to go into commission for its first full season.

DREW DEATH FATE BY LOT IN SUICIDE CLUB

FRIENDS TELL WHY CHARLES HAMMOND TOOK HIS OWN LIFE IN LYNN.

MANCHESTER, N. H., April 25.—Friends of Charles Hammond, who committed suicide in Lynn, Mass., a few days ago, have been comparing notes since they heard of his death, and it has come to light that he was a member of a suicide club, and that according to agreement he was to take his own life in 1907.

The last time Hammond was in Manchester, a few weeks ago, he was at his very best, in good fellow. He spent money freely and was in the gayest of spirits. When he went away he informed the companions that he was saying farewell to them.

Thinking that he was joking, they asked him not to talk in that strain. Then he told them that he was one of seven men who six years ago agreed to commit suicide, one each year. They decided the order by lot, and five of them had drawn their exit slips and had "made good." Last December, Hammond and the other survivor had facic drawing, and it was up to the former to go in 1907.

Hammond told it all calmly and cheerfully and again bade his friends a fond goodby. He was so sincere in his tone that everyone believed him.

Hammond would not tell who the last man is and the secret probably died with him.

AWES CROWD WITH SWORD

AUBURN, Me., April 25.—Moses King, Jr., of Lewiston, who was to have given a lecture on "Loyal Orangemen" in Good Templars' Hall, last night, made a sensational demonstration with a drawn sword and waved his glittering sword at the crowd below. It was necessary to call out the police to quell the riot.

King, in the outset of his lecture, said "only Protestants would be allowed to attend." Local Catholics took exception to his ruling and turned out en masse. The lecture was called off.

ARREST JOHN L., HE PAYS CLAIM

WORCESTER, April 25.—John L. Sullivan, who has been in Worcester on a theatrical trip three nights, was arrested last night on a mesne process at the instance of Henry N. Farren of Boston, who claimed a bill of $110 for board paid for Sullivan and for money lent him.

Sullivan was under arrest a few minutes when the claim was paid and he was set free.

SAVE WOMAN FROM DEATH IN FLAMES

SHELBURNE, Vt., April 25.—Mrs. Ida Reed, president of the Women's Christian Union in Vermont, narrowly escaped being burned to death yesterday, when she awoke to find her home in flames, and the only avenue of escape cut off. Other occupants of the house saved Mrs. Reed's life.

COL. GODDARD, ILL, TO BE TAKEN HOME

AIKEN, S. C., April 25.—Colonel William Goddard of Providence, R. I., who has been very ill here for six weeks, leaves to-morrow for his home.

WARREN DOCTOR WEDS SECRETLY

WARREN, April 25.—The secret wedding on April 1 of Dr. Charles E. Perkins, a prominent physician, to Mrs. Elizabeth C. Fales of West Brookfield became known here yesterday by the return of the marriage license, and comes as a big surprise to the friends and acquaintances of the principals.

They were married in Boston on that date by the Rev. Charles A. Crane of No. 143 Berkeley street.

Mrs. Fales, it is said, was his boyhood sweetheart, they being separated by a lovers' quarrel. Mrs. Perkins died January 10 of this year.

DOCTOR HOOKS 2 GIANT SALMON

SEBAGO LAKE, Me., April 25.—Dr. James L. Chase of Portland was "high line" at Sebago Lake yesterday by catching two of the finest salmon which have been seen in the State of Maine for many years.

Dr. Chase was fishing with a Haggley Lake guide on the east shore of the lake and hooked a salmon which when taken from the water weighed 21¼ pounds. He played the fish for 45 minutes.

Later Dr. Chase hooked the largest salmon which has been taken in Maine lake near. It is said. He played the fish for over an hour and when he was finally landed the boat was two and a half miles from where the fish had been hooked. He tipped the scales at 23 pounds.

VT. ANARCHISTS HIT EX-POLICE CHIEF

BARRE, Vt., April 25.—Barre anarchists have filed a protest with the Board of License Commissioners against the granting of liquor licenses to former Chief of Police Peter Brown and Angelo Cannuni. The protest is signed by 124 men. Their spokesman, M. Ginnai, announced that he "was an anarchist and that the others were."

ALBANY LINES PLAN GIGANTIC TROLLEY GRAB

That the New York Central railroad is contemplating a gigantic purchase of all competing trolley lines in Massachusetts, is reported to-day in railroad circles. Only the decision of the Supreme Court as to the legality of the acquisition by the New York, New Haven & Hartford of the Worcester Consolidated and other lines is awaited for the completion of the Central's plans, it is declared.

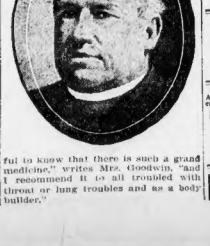
More than twenty-five individual companies are affected by the proposition, which involves the expenditure of approximately $60,000,000.

With large Vanderbilt interests already in the Boston & Maine railroad, which operates the Central Massachusetts and Fitchburg divisions, the interests involved in the New York Central lines would have practically full control of all transportation in the Bay State except the New Haven system.

THROAT SLASHER DYING.

ST. JOHNSBURY, Vt., April 25.—Edward Collins of East Waterford, who, it is alleged, attempted to kill his housekeeper, Mrs. Mary Collins, and then tried suicide by slashing his throat, is dying at the St. Johnsbury Hospital.

SAVED HER LITTLE BOY



Mrs. G. A. Goodwin of Blossburg, Pa., writes that her little son, Walter, had a dreadful cough and no appetite and failed until he weighed only 55 pounds. Since taking Father John's Medicine he has gained in weight, now weighing 85 pounds, and his cough has been completely cured. "I am thankful to know that there is such a grand medicine," writes Mrs. Goodwin, "and I recommend it to all troubled with throat or lung troubles and as a body builder."

HERO SAVED MY LIFE, BLUSHED WHEN THANKED

—MISS BROWNELL.

Captain Black's Bravery in Bermuda Cave Equalled by His Modesty.

SWAM IN THE DARKNESS

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 25.—Just returned from her usual wintering in Bermuda, Miss Alice Brownell, daughter of Mrs. Harriet F. Brownell of No. 208 Broadway, one of the pretty young leaders in local and Newport social circles, is today telling her friends of a narrow escape she had from drowning in a dark Bermuda cave, and giving all the credit to Captain Black of the Royal Artillery, who at the risk of his own life saved her.

"It was just six weeks ago," said Miss Brownell in recounting her adventure, "that Captain Black and I were members of a party which had been formed to explore some of the caves that had been found in Bermuda.

"We had all gone to a cave, the entrance to which was not well opened, and we all had to enter it on our hands and knees. Inside we all descended to a long, wide, rocky shelf that overhung a subterranean river or lake.

Took Boat for Row.

"A little negro native boy paddled a punt filled with torches and offered to row us across the lake and around. Only Captain Black and I consented, and we stepped gingerly into the little boat and the boy pushed off as our friends on the shelf above eyed us. We got well into the boat we had to descend a little rope ladder.

"We had gone but a rod or so from the shore when the punt sprang sleak and began to take in water at a fast and alarming rate. The little colored boy who had just lighted torches for us got frightened and he leaped into the water and overturned the skiff.

"Now the whole thing happened far more quickly than I can tell it. I cannot swim a stroke and I screamed for dear life, for I felt that my time had come. Oh, it was fearful, for our torches were extinguished and there we were in a lake supposed to be bottomless, the waters of which were icy and the darkness almost the sort that could be felt.

Was Strangling in Water.

"Our friends above heard and saw part of the accident and they shrieked in reply when our torches went out. I can't tell my story very connectedly, for I was too much alarmed, and I was strangling in the water when suddenly Captain Black seized me and he began to swim to where he thought the shore was.

"I had just enough nut to struggle, and by the best of good luck the captain managed to reach a narrow shelf at the edge of the water. He dragged me up and clambered up himself. After awhile our friends, who got torches, managed to find us and we were able to get out.

"It was then black as Egypt sitting there on that little shelf, our clothing saturated with the ice water of the black lake. It happened that the negro boy had swum to the very shelf that we managed to reach, but we did not know that he was there until our friends found us.

"And then, Captain Black—he is such a strange man! When I started to thank him, he blushed and said it was nothing, nothing, nothing at all; that he couldn't have done differently than he did."

SAVED FROM DROWNING IN CAVE

Miss Alice Brownell, society girl of Providence and Newport, who fell into a subterranean lake while exploring a Bermuda cavern and was rescued by Captain Black of the Royal Artillery. Miss Brownell, who is devoted to out-door life, has a fine kennel and the picture shows her with one of her prize winners.

BURGLARS GET RARE OLD WINE

After robbing Joseph Jullo, a boarding house keeper at No. 128 Otis street, East Cambridge, of $40 last night, hungry thieves visited the pantry and ate all the food in sight. They also took away a quart of rare old wine. Jullo discovered the break when he arose this morning and found several gas jets burning in his bedroom and kitchen. The money was stolen from Jullo's clothes, which lay on a chair near his bed.

FRIENDS HALT BRIDAL TOUR

ATLANTIC CITY, April 25.—Eugene L. Nixon, a young divinity student, and his bride, who was Miss Edna M. Cordery of this city, left yesterday on their bridal trip, thankful that the bridegroom had not fallen into the hands of kidnappers, whose threats had kept him close at home since Saturday.

The unannounced wedding early Saturday evening was not over before a crowd of friends had been called together to storm the bride's home.

SMOKE KILLS IN LONDON FOG

LONDON, April 25.—"London fogs kill people by the thousand," said Sir Frederick Treves, the famous surgeon, at the annual meeting of the Coal Smoke Abatement Society. "The lungs of a young child have a fine pink tint, but the lungs of an adult who has spent his life in a great city are a dingy blue. This is wholly the result of dirt and soot. Fog kills. Sunshine is the simplest, cheapest and most effective germicide known. It prevents depression and disease."

Sir William Richmond, chairman of the society, says hundreds of great buildings in London are decaying from coal smoke. He contends that in the absence of coal smoke the fogs would lose their noxious properties.

PARENTS DEAD; ACCUSE GIRL

CHICAGO, April 25.—A warrant charging Mrs. Sladek with the murder of her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mette, was taken out today. Mrs. Mette died several weeks ago and Frank Mette died on April 6. A chemical analysis has shown that Mrs. Mette was poisoned by arsenic, and it is believed that her husband's death was caused in the same manner. There is no direct evidence against Mrs. Sladek, but she has been under suspicion since the death of her mother.

Three members of Mrs. Sladek are now critically ill, and it is believed by the police that she endeavored to poison them.

ROGERS PLANS VACATION ROMP

NEW YORK, April 25.—Wall Street has heard that H. H. Rogers is going to take a long vacation, which, according to the story, is to be largely spent abroad. The fact that his new steam yacht, the Kanawha, is being put into commission was taken as a confirmation downtown of the rumor which went out so far on it that Mr. Rogers would make his start on or about May 8, and that the Kanawha would take him abroad.

When asked if he was about to take a long vacation, he laughed.

"I wish I were," was the only answer he would make.

Ladies will wear novel costumes. The stage will be decorated as a barn with numerous farming implements. The musicians, in rural dress, will parade in the hall as a brass band.

Matches Can Never Be Arranged by Any Hard and Fast Rule

By Winifred Black

DEAR me, how scientific we're getting to be! The Eugenic Association of California has just been incorporated for the purpose of so regulating the laws of heredity that the human race shall be developed into something approaching the angels.

My, my, how interesting! Once I sat in the queer dusk of a queer little room watching a queer old woman baking hoe cakes in the ashes.

"What's dat I hears 'bout you readin' so much, honey?" said the old woman, giving the skillet a shake. "Fust news you know you'll be like a man we used to neighbor with 'way down yander in the Big Smokies.

"He had two almanacs and a Good Book, and he knowed so much dat he didn't know nothin' at all."

Every time I read about one of these ideal heredity societies made up of people who have read so much that they know more than the Nature which created them I wonder if they all are just a little bit like the man who "neighbored" with the old woman 'way down yander in the Big Smokies.

The laws of heredity are plain enough and the way they work out is plain enough. I should think even an enlightened scientist could understand that they will work all right without any human interference.

Can't Regulate It

THE little goose who runs away with the knock-kneed clerk whose neckties match his socks thinks she's in love with him on account of the color of his eyes or the way he gets of his hair cut.

She isn't.

Neither she nor he has very much to do with the case, but the great laws of heredity as exemplified by natural selection have a whole lot to do with it.

If all the big men were not hound and determined to fall in love with little dots of women, we'd have a world made up of giants and dwarfs.

How many handsome men do you know who picked out beauties for their wives?

Didn't the ugliest girl of your acquaintance marry the most looking man in the set? What do you suppose all of these things happen for—just to give the comic paragraphers a chance to be funny?

We don't think anything about the great law of attraction when we marry. We don't have to think about it.

We obey it, and that's enough.

When a dark maid falls in love with a blonde girl he doesn't know that he's simply being bossed by a great primitive rule which works out for the best in the great majority of cases—but hers.

And he could join all the fool Eugenic societies on earth, learn all the formulas that were ever written, and when it got to be the right time for him to marry a little snub-nosed, red-headed woman, he'd marry her if he had to crawl half across the continent on his hands and knees.

What's the reason the children of a marriage which is arranged by the parents of the bride and groom never amount to much?

The parents were thinking about property and estate and things. Sometimes they even imagine they were thinking about temperament, but they were all the time ignoring the law of natural selection, and so the marriage didn't turn out such a success, after all.

All Nonsense

OH, these clever, clever scientists, and the immense amount they don't know!

Do you remember a few years ago how the scientists drove us all mad with the microbe?

There was a microbe in this, a microbe in that, microbes swarmed relentless and hungry in the innocent water we have been drinking ever since we were children. There were microbes in the meat, microbes in the quince pie, and even the air was full of microbes.

Everything had to be sterilized.

What, give your baby plain, every-day milk from a cow? Dreadful idea!

Heavens, think of the microbes!

So you sterilized the milk and you sterilized the beef, and you fussed around about sterilizing the iceboxand now these same scientists have discovered that sterilized milk isn't worth drinking at all—just because it is sterilized.

I never was particularly impressed by them anyway. I kept wondering who sterilized the food for George Washington and Abraham Lincoln, and how on earth they kept the microbes from eating Napoleon Bonaparte up before he had a chance to grow up to be big.

This fool trial marriage heredity fad is the same kind of nonsense.

TWO SMART SHIRTWAIST SUITS

They Give a Glimpse of the Most Popular of the Newest and Most Fashionable Designs for Summer

CROSS-BAR muslin is quite the newest material the ruffles and collar and cuffs of lace or fine embroidery, for shirtwaists, and nothing could be prettier. The Ruff linen shirtwaists are still worn with tailor suits, and most popular waist for the coming Summer will this design, with its rolling-trimmed collar, cuffs and be the simple one with a pointed yoke effect of front piece, is a most effective one.

HOW TO KEEP YOUR HATS FRESH

Home-Made Boxes and Supports Are Serviceable, Inexpensive and Easy to Put Together

THE new bucket, mushroom and bell-shaped hats, particularly those with drooping trimmings and "plumes piercing," demand different supports from the drones of wire covered with silk which have so long been popular for keeping hats in shape.

The hour-glass hat supporter is not only very new but absolutely necessary, if one would have an expensive hat kept in any sort of freshness. There are two ways of making this hour-glass support.

Cut two circles, a little smaller than the inside of the top of a hat crown, of heavy cardboard or wood. Cover each with a piece of grenadine, silk, velvet, or anything suitable for that purpose.

Tack each circle to a stick from eight to fourteen inches in height, according to the length of the plume to be protected.

Make a bag an inch longer than the stick and much wider than the outer rim of the circles, and gather each end of it to the edges of the circles.

A narrow frill may be allowed above the edge of the upper circle or the edge may be finished with ribbon or gimp.

Arrange a bow of ribbon on top and tie the middle of the bag to the stick with ribbon of the same kind. You now have a very attractive hour-glass made up out of odd bits of left-over scraps.

The hat fits over the top circle and the bottom one, where the bag is tied to the stick allows room for the bows or plumes which hang from the hat to droop without hindrance.

Wire Supports

Wire hat supporters are now made like inverted jam shades and these are put over ribbon is wrapped around the wires and tied in bows or rosettes at the intersections of the wire supports and upper and lower circles.

These are admirable for nearly all kinds of hats except those which demand a very high, hour-glass stand. To make a hour-glass stand of these take two of them and wrap the ribbon around the double wires where the supports are joined at the small end.

Finish with a bow and there you have one of the prettiest ornamental hat supporters in the world. Little sachet cases and bags can be added to dangling ribbon ends to heighten their effectiveness.

Wire hat holders may also be treated in the hour-glass form of dust and crushing. Small trunks are cardboard and a stick. It is the proper thing to add a circle of wadding cotton to the upper circle of the hour-glass before sewing on the silk top.

New Hat Boxes

Hat boxes are made by covering the in side and outside of an oblong wooden box with fancy crestonne, or any other pretty covering material, and then tacking in the bottom, the sides and lid a large wire tension, or one of the lighter wire stands. If an hour-glass form is necessary the holder must be omitted from the lid.

A box should be procured large enough to hold several hats of different sizes. When the lid is fitted and all the pretty ribbon and silk-covered holders are disclosed the effect is wonderfully pretty.

There is nothing more useful than such a box for, as nothing but hats ever goes into it, they are always safe from treated in this fashion for the woman trav-

Hats are screwed to the wire forms by simply running a hat pin down through the wire as though one were pinning a hat upon the head.

A home-made hat box for a woman's own make-up is fitted and most convenable gift and by adding a small cushion to the top it may be made to serve the purpose of a sofa.

It is the fashion to make hat boxes shoe boxes and shirtwaist chests with the same suitable finish when all are used in the same room.

A set covered with burlap and finished with copper trimmings is very handsome indeed, while some boxes are even made with coverings of the beautiful Spanish leather all decorated in lovely colors.

Young Men, Don't Be Hoodwinked by Mere Good Looks

By Beatrice Fairfax

MEN are poor judges of a woman's characteristics. A pretty woman can nearly always hoodwink a man for a certain length of time anyway.

She may be pretty, selfish, a nonentity, but for a while her beauty will outclass all her faults, and some shortsighted man will marry her in the fond belief that her mere beauty will make him a happy man for life.

He does not realize until after he has married her that a pink and white ornament cannot add materially to the happiness and comfort of a home.

Then, when he is tied to a spoiled, peevish woman, people will feel sorry for him and say, "Poor So and So has no home life at all; he is married to a selfish, incapable woman."

In reality he deserves no sympathy at all. He never looked for better qualities in a wife, but married a girl simply and merely because she was pretty.

Look Before You Leap

WHEN a man is courting he is quite satisfied if his sweetheart is pretty and agreeable, but when he is married he expects his wife to develop much more substantial virtues.

That is all very well, but he should have thought of it a little sooner. He should have said to himself, "Is this girl anything but pretty and agreeable? Will she make a good wife and congenial companion?"

Of course, no young man who is in process of falling in love can be expected to keep an entirely cool head of and look carefully at all sides of the question, but he surely can exercise a little common sense and not be swayed entirely by mere physical beauty.

There are hundreds of girls who are sensible and bright, as well as good looking, and the man who wins such a girl can indeed consider himself lucky.

And there are also hundreds of nice girls who, though not actually pretty, are quite good looking enough to be pleasant to look at.

But often a man will pass them by and choose a pretty, little, emptyheaded goose whom he will tire of within a year after marriage.

Beauty Isn't All

BEAUTY is a very charming quality in a girl, but it won't go very far toward making her a desirable wife unless she has other fine qualities to supplement it.

Young man, if you are attracted by a pretty girl, find out all about her before you invite her to share your name and fortune.

Find out if she is sweet-tempered, neat and economical. Notice how she treats her little brothers and sisters, and whether she saves her mother all she can or lets her slave while her daughter gads about in fine clothes.

A good daughter will make a good wife. Sometimes the very pretty girl is vain and spoiled. If so, she will make a selfish wife.

It is important to find out if she is economical. An extravagant wife will hold you back all your life.

Think of all these things before you decide on taking the most important step of your life.

Don't jump to the conclusion that a pretty face will satisfy all your ideas of what a wife should be. Go slowly and think it well over.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

SHOULD HAVE MONEY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl twenty years old and have been keeping company with a young man a few years my senior for about a year, and am quite fondly engaged to him, but I have no ring. He promised to get me one, but I never got it. I love him very much, and he says he loves me and shows it in many ways. He had promised to save his money and marry me sometime ago, but he has not saved a cent as yet. He earns $20 a week and ought to be able to save some of it. I think I should have an engagement ring, as he can well afford it, and how can he expect to get married if he doesn't save? He has no one to support but himself. I don't want to give him up, as he is a nice fellow. Please advise me what to do. M. J.

I WOULD not worry about the ring, though, of course, it would be nice to have one. Many girls go without an engagement ring. But I do think that he ought to be saving money if he is anxious to get married. On his salary he could marry very comfortably now, and as long as he is alone he ought to save at least ten dollars a week.

QUITE CORRECT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl nineteen years of age and go out quite often with a gentleman friend of mine. Is it proper for me, when walking along the street with him, to take his arm? Also, would it be proper for me to walk the young man to dinner some Sunday, or to come to supper and spend the evening?

Although we don't keep steady company, I like him very much indeed, and as they say "actions speak louder than words," know that he cares for me. He calls to see me quite often and generally goes home from church with me. He knows my address and telephone. I am well acquainted with his. LONG BRANCH.

YES, if you are walking with him in the evening it is quite proper to do so. It would also be quite proper to invite him to dinner if your mother is willing.

CREAMED SHRIMPS

PUT a pint of milk in a dish on the stove, and when hot stir in thickening made of a little flour, stirred smooth in a little milk; add a beaten egg and a little salt. Open a can of French peas, rinse and put in a saucepan on stove to heat; add a lump of butter, salt and pepper and a level teaspoon of sugar. Drain the liquid from a can of shrimps, add to the cream and serve on hot buttered toast, and pour the peas around the edges. This can be made in a chafing dish, and is fine for an impromptu lunch. MRS. F. ROACH. No. 2200 Main street, Milford.

SMALL OYSTER PIES

TAKE a tin plate half the size of an ordinary dinner plate, butter it and cover the bottom with a puff paste, as for pies. Lay on it five or six select oysters, or enough to cover the bottom; butter, and season with a little salt and pepper; spread over this an egg batter, and cover with an upper crust of the paste, piercing with a fork. Bake for twenty minutes, or until the top is nicely browned. Repeat this process for each pie.

Handy Things for Housewives to Know

THE best way to keep fresh unsalted butter in perfect condition for a considerable time is to procure it first of all as fresh as possible.

Cut it into quarter pounds and immerse it for a short delay in very strong salt and water—say two handfuls of salt to a pint and large enough to take in one pound of butter when half filled with fresh drinking water.

To keep the mangle running easily and without any jarring, do not use oil on the cog-wheels and bearings. A far better plan is to melt a quantity of mutton fat in a saucer, add a quantity of finely powdered black lead. Mix well, allow to cool, then put this mixture as a paste on all working parts. One great advantage is that this paste sticks on well and does not form a dust trap like oil does.

An expensive dress, badly stained, should be sent to the cleaners as soon as possible. Amateur cleaning seldom does more than fail in removing stains, as, like most other things, it requires experience. When sponging, stale what was spilled over it, and also say anything or not you have attempted to remove the stain. The best plan is to leave it alone, as this gives the cleaners a fairer chance than they can possibly have if you have used what may be an unsuitable cleaning agent first.

There is nothing more useful than such a box for, as nothing but hats ever goes into it, they are always safe from eling. Small trunks are

"THE BRACEBRIDGE DIAMONDS"

CHAPTER CIII.
The Whole Truth

Copyright, 1907, by American Journal-Examiner.

IT was at the Baronness had predicted. The solons was of but short duration, and when conciousness and memory had fully returned and Suzanne realized her position, she was not in a condition mentally or physically to make any further resistance. The Baroness held her, as it were, in the hollow of her hand. Loftus now took a seat in the parlor.

"Now that you are better, Suzanne," said the Baroness, as she felt to the bone truth. Mr. Bracebridge and I have been discussing this matter, and if you can convince us that we have not erred in the murder of his young cousin, and have not deceived us in any way, we are both inclined to treat you with leniency and keep the matter quiet.

"A watch, however, will be kept upon your movements, and if we discover that you have played any tricks upon us you will be arrested at once. Now, you quite understand."

"Yes, Mme. la Baronne, and I swear to tell you nothing but the truth. It was just like this. The young man was found in love with you. He gave me money, plenty of it, and I daresay I told him a good many lies to please him.

"He showed me the necklace and said it was for you.

"This I repeated to Bibi, who at once made the suggestion you have mentioned. I did not like the idea at first, but when he said he would not harm a hair of the young man's head I consented. We were to be married as soon as possible afterwards. That was the arrangement.

"As I came in Bibi looked up and said 'It is all right now; he is only asleep. Don't be alarmed.' Then they went through his pockets. 'Here, hold this, Suzanne,' said Bibi, handing me the case containing the necklace.

"Then I saw them take a watch and chain, rings, purse—everything upon him, and at last, as Bibi opened a pocket book, I heard him utter a shout that nearly frightened me out of my life. 'This will do,' he said. 'Put on your things, Suzanne, and clear out. You go to the Place and meet me at the Bibi building. He will be awake in a few minutes now. Run along, do you hear? Pip! And he carried what you are about.'

"I slipped into the next room and I was putting on my things when Bibi undid the strings, and I saw he found nothing," said he. 'He won't know what has happened when he wakes up.' With that he removed the strap binding the arms, when I heard the rustling of the chair and fell like a log to the floor. We examined him and found that he was dead.

"A very touching and pathetic tale, Suzanne," said the Baroness, "and I propose on your hands and were at a loss to know what to do with it. Whom was the kindly suggestion that it should be placed in my trunk? Yours?"

SHOULDER BLADES NEED CARE

GOOD dress and your shoulder blades go together. That is to say, if the latter are not as the studio artist would have them, farewell all attempts to make you look better than a mere clothes-prop.

The Frenchwoman takes care of her shoulder blades, for only by this way does she hope to wear her gowns effectively. She watches them daily, and thinks of them oftener, and this is why she does so —the witty explanation of one of her kidney-shaped shoulder blades got fat and you are lost, let them become stooping and you are ruined, let them get sharp and none of your gowns will fit you, let them grow ungraceful and you might as well give up the beauty quest.

WILL TAKE NO TESTIMONY IN MRS. EDDY SUIT

Judge Will Decide at Hearing on Affidavits and Arguments of Counsel.

REV. MR. TOMLINSON BACK

CONCORD, N. H., April 25.—Since the arrival of former Senator William E. Chandler from Washington active preparations for the hearing in the suit against the advisers of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy have been carried on. Yesterday, in company with John S. Kelley, he returned from White River Junction, where they conferred with Dr. Ebenezer J. Foster Eddy of Waterbury, Vt., the adopted son of Mrs. Eddy.

Later in the day Mr. Kelley left for Portsmouth, but will return here later in the week, while Mr. Chandler has been going over the case with Fred W. Baker of Epsom, another of the "next friends." Mr. Baker has secured employment in Concord and taken up his home here in order to be near the scene of activity.

Test Comes May 13.

The hearing May 13 may decide the suit. Should the defendants win their contention and the court make no order to substitute the trustees of Mrs. Eddy's estate, Hon. Henry M. Baker, Archibald McLellan and Josiah E. Fernald, for the original "next friends" in the suit, it is reasonable to expect that, in consideration of the declaration of Mr. Baker and Mr. Fernald, the proceedings will cease. No testimony will be taken, but the question will be decided upon such affidavits as may be filed on or before May 9 by the plaintiffs, supplemented by the arguments of counsel.

At the regular weekly service for testimony of Christian Science healing, held last evening at the First Church of Christ, Scientist, among the speakers was Rev. Irving C. Tomlinson, brother of Miss Mary A. Tomlinson, whose untimely death occurred in Boston last week. It was the first public appearance of Mr. Tomlinson since his return from Michigan, where he went with the remains of his sister. His testimony, in the light of this fact, was one of the most remarkable heard in the local church in a long time, showing clearly his faith in his creed was not shaken in the least.

Testified to Faith.

"I wish to testify," he said, "to my gratitude for Christian Science. It has taught me to be grateful for the Christian religion as revealed in Science and Health. I am grateful for the 23d Psalm. I am grateful for the gift to dwell in the house of the Lord, to abide in the consciousness of good, to have peace and love always with me for the Good Shepherd, who always leads us in green pastures, who guides our feet in the right, who is with us in the valley, who ever teaches us there is no valley, no clouds, but that all is light and love."

POURS HOT SHOT INTO MARK TWAIN'S ATTACK ON SCIENCE

NEW YORK, April 25.—The Christian Scientists have a new controversy on their hands which bids fair to exceed in interest and discussion the famous lawsuit recently begun by Mrs. Eddy's blood relations for the control of her property.

It is now an open secret that this litigation was organized and is being materially abetted by a newspaper of this city, in order to support the badly shattered claim made last Fall, with a great flourish of trumpets, that the wonderful woman of Pleasant View was a mental and physical wreck, and that her advisers were poaching gross deceptions upon her followers and the country at large.

Big Religious Controversy.

Under these circumstances the matter has not been as much taken to heart by the Christian Scientists as has the attack on their beliefs and doctrines by Mark Twain.

The great humorist has been "laying for" Mrs. Eddy and her followers for some years. An early issue of the Cosmopolitan Magazine contained his first writing on the subject. He then claimed that Mrs. Eddy could not have written "Science and Health" and that all benefits derived from Christian Science were due entirely to the exercise of the imagination. He likened its cures to those made in olden times by the King's touch and contact with the relics of saints. These views have been elaborated into a good-sized volume, which recently appeared.

Recognizing the popularity of Mark Twain and the great respect entertained for his opinions, Christian Scientists realize that the most powerful support they have yet had to face must be met. They are making elaborate plans to do so, and the resulting warfare will be between exciting religious controversy ever witnessed in this country.

First Shot Fired.

The first shot from the Scientist entrenchments is fired by Edward A. Kimball, the well known Christian Science author and lecturer, in the May number of the Cosmopolitan Magazine.

Although it is evident that a large-sized hole has been made in the enemy's argumentative breastwork, he is seen to be reloading and ready to fire over. There must be some heavy cannonading before he is silenced, and the battle is sure to compel the attention of every one interested in religious matters, of whatever faith or creed.

In fact, the whole future of Christian Science may depend upon the outcome.

MOTHER AND TWINS ENTER BIG CONTEST

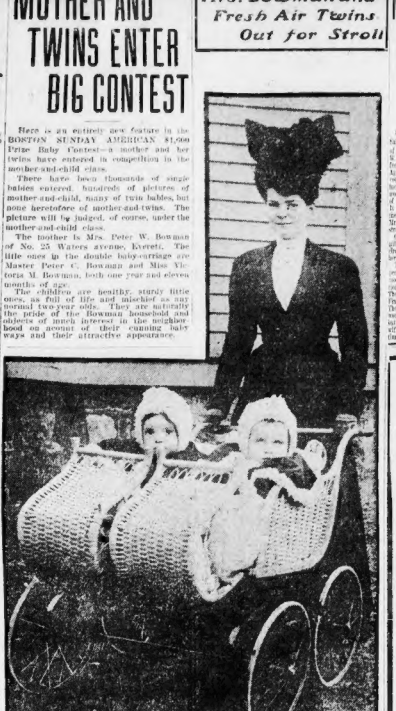
Mrs. Bowman and Fresh Air Twins Out for Stroll

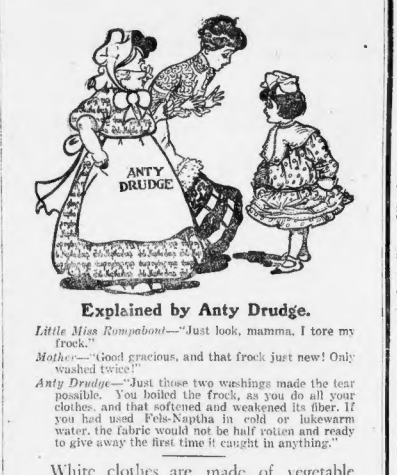
Here is an entirely new feature in the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN $1,000 Prize Baby Contest—a mother and her twins have entered in competition in the mother-and-child class.

There have been thousands of single babies entered, hundreds of pictures of mother-and-child, many of twin babies, but none heretofore of mother-and-twins. The picture will be judged, of course, under the mother-and-child class.

The mother is Mrs. Peter W. Bowman of No. 25 Waters avenue, Everett. The little ones in the double baby-carriage are Master Peter C. Bowman and Miss Victoria M. Bowman, both one year and eleven months of age.

The children are healthy, sturdy little ones, as full of life and mischief as any normal two-year olds. They are naturally the pride of the Bowman household and eldents of much interest in the neighborhood on account of their cunning baby ways and their attractive appearance.





Explained by Anty Drudge.

Little Miss Rompabout—"Just look, mamma, I tore my frock."

Mother—"Good gracious, and that frock just new! Only washed twice!"

Anty Drudge—"Just those two washings made the tear possible. You boiled the frock, as you do all your clothes, and that softened and weakened its fiber. If you had used Fels-Naptha in cold or lukewarm water, the fabric would not be half rotten and ready to give away the first time it caught in anything."

White clothes are made of vegetable fibres, cotton or flax. Boiling affects them the same way it does other vegetable matter, as potatoes or cabbage. It softens them and weakens the fibre. Boiling will soften even hard wood.

By this you can easily see how your clothes will wear out quicker and tear more easily if you boil and hard-rub them. Wool, which is an animal fibre, is softened just as the fibre of meat in boiling. Fels-Naptha will cleanse your clothes in cold or lukewarm water without any boiling or hard rubbing, and there isn't a single thing in it that will harm the goods.

Your clothes will wear twice as long, and they'll be whiter and cleaner all the time. Try a cake of Fels-Naptha and see. But use it the Fels-Naptha way, according to the simple directions on the red and green wrapper. They'll tell you how to wash all kinds of clothes with Fels-Naptha; wash dishes, clean floors and do many other things with it.

NORTH SHORE SOCIETY WILL GREET DODDS

Society people of Lynn, Swampscott and vicinity are highly interested in the wedding of Andrew W. Dodd, Jr., son of Andrew W. Dodd, Sr., the millionaire shoe manufacturer of Salem and Gloucester, to Miss Anne J. Herrick of Derrickport. The couple are now on a honeymoon trip which includes a six months' tour abroad. The wedding took place yesterday in the factory of St. Peter's Church, Meeting House Hill, and was followed by a wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Herrick, No. 22 Victoria street, Dorchester.

On their return Mr and Mrs. Dodd, Jr., will live in Swampscott, where society leaders will welcome the young bride and her wealthy husband.

The elder Dodd has kept North Shore society quite interested in his own matrimonial affairs. Three years ago the millionaire, a young woman many years his junior, they did not go along well together, and finally Mr. Dodd left abruptly for Europe. There was report that divorce proceedings would follow. This did not take place, and the elderly millionaire and his younger wife have not lived together since that time.

ANNUAL FAST HELD TO-DAY IN GRANITE STATE

CONCORD, N. H., April 25.—The Granite State to-day observes the Fast Day instituted in New England by the Pilgrim Fathers. The day is a legal holiday, and while in the cities and manufacturing centres its religious aspect was in the main observed on Sunday, in the smaller communities religious meetings are scheduled with programs of more than usual elaborateness.

In New Hampshire the attempt to substitute Patriots' Day for Fast Day, similarly observed by Maine, was a total failure. The Fast Day proclamation of Governor Charles M. Floyd was issued early in March, and thankfulness that had characterized the early patriots of his predecessor.

Governor Floyd, by the way, is to-day attending the Fast Day service at the People's Baptist Tabernacle, on Concord street, in Manchester.

The baseball season also opens to-day, and not far from the Tabernacle in Manchester to-night Kid Pants of Boston and Colonel Bilkbord, Mc., will battle. Arthur Cote of Biddeford, Me., will act as argument to be decided by a referee.

With better conditions prevailing there may be a different result in the Pilgrims' playing at the Huntington avenue grounds this afternoon and a win from the Athletics is overdue. The Philadelphians have no better aggregation of ball tossers than the Hub and there is no reason for letting them pick up any easy money on their jump over here at this time of the year.

Manager Huff has had a brief chance to size up the situation of the non-winning streak which has followed the club for five games by seeing the last two contests and may have something up his sleeve which will make it worth while.

Three straight wins by the Athletics and Connie Mack out with the cry that his team is far from being in the best of shape does not bear the local stock, but the ways of baseball warfare are uncertain and with the right weather approaching the real goods will come along.

Jesse Tannehill is about right to do a few stunts with that wonderful left flinger of his and may get his cue this afternoon to do a little shooting. Whoever takes the job will have to match his skill against some tough cubs, as either Waddell or Indian Bender may be practicing at the traps.

A worse day for the game could not have been placed on the calendar than yesterday, when Uncle Cy essayed to do the Athletics up on their first appearance in the Hub and lost the chance by the score of 6 to 1.

The old warhorse was burning up space with his speed for a quartet of sessions when the low was broken, and in the final inning a few bumps came which could be brought under the name of the wind, which threatened to tear Old Glory to threads on the flagpole in centre field.

It was Young who had the way with the stick with three hits in three times up, and there were only three others scattered around among the rest of the team.

Coombs, the big Maine boy, had his sign out as usual and was available to any advantage by the home team.

Harry Davis was the big offender with the club. He had a queer record, with two assists mixed with a triple and a homer.

SAM CRANE PRAISES HUB AMERICANS

This is the way Sam Crane, the veteran New York baseball critic, sized up the Pilgrims after their first game in New York:

"Collins, while he appears a bit overloaded as to pedals, his legs being distinctly on the Charley Hickman order of variety, still, Jimmy gives strong evidence that he is back to his old time grand form and when that is said he is a tower of strength to any team.

"Then there is young Wagner, the Beechview and ex-Giant, who has replaced Fred Parent at shortstop, and he is a wise comer as a fielder. He is of the Tuck Turner order, rather, will hold his job where he is. He was charged with three errors in Saturday's game, but he had fifteen chances, and on a day when the wind blew so strongly that it help took the course of gyrations, and when throws were made very indiscriminate as to accuracy, to own a fair handles himself is sufficient for me to get the line I want on a man, and Wagner is surely going to prove a wonderfully good fielder. Possibly he is only a fair batter

Because we will not agree to keep up their high prices on pianos. At present the war seems to be with us. Nothing has yet been legally done to stop us selling at any old price. While we have a piano to dispose of we will enter it in our weekly sacrifice sale—Piano Trust or no Piano Trust.

In the past week many excellent piano values were given. Some of the finest upright pianos were sold at startlingly low prices. This week's list is a little larger and better—on account of the nature of the sale. It being a storage sale, many new and second hand pianos of the best makers are sacrificed—the prices are made subject to conditions which do not include any agent's commissions, sellers' commissions or any additional profit to the storage salesroom whatever, in sales like these some one must lose in your favor. The profit in all rooms—the finest instruments of the world's best makers are in this sacrifice list.

Electric Transportation Will Give Men Wings

And This New Step Forward Will Make the Wise Man Prosperous, THROUGH REAL ESTATE

We talk again to our readers about the possibilities of making money LEGITIMATELY through a modest real estate investment.

We realize with regret that the editorials which we have published and shall publish in regard to real estate will cause SOME readers to make unfortunate investments. UNHAPPILY IT IS INEVITABLE.

On the other hand, the man who, disregarding advice and failing to use his judgment, buys REAL ESTATE FOOLISHLY, would buy SOMETHING ELSE foolishly and lose his money, anyhow.

Those of our readers who buy real estate THOUGHTFULLY, DELIBERATELY and CAREFULLY, after personal investigation, have now a chance that will not come again in fifty years.

Electric transportation, the third rail, the possibility of high speed at cheap cost mean this:

In a very few years land forty miles from Boston will be reached more quickly THAN SOME PARTS OF DORCHESTER COULD BE REACHED TWENTY YEARS AGO, OR EVEN FIVE YEARS AGO.

Everybody knows what has happened to the land in some parts of the nearby Boston suburbs. It was cheap BECAUSE IT TOOK SO LONG TO GET THERE. You could buy land there very cheap THEN.

IT IS TOO LATE TO MAKE MONEY in some of these places, unless with a big investment. The suburban roads, the Elevated and the Subway have done their work.

What the Elevated and the Subway have done for nearby land, the electric railroad, the third rail, and the new bridges and subways are going to do for great areas near Boston in such localities, for instance, as Forest Hills, Cambridge and the districts that lie beyond.

In this world, with human beings as with the birds, EVERYTHING IS A MATTER OF FLIGHT. You know that the chickens, the ducks and the geese in the barnyard must stay in a little space. They must find all their food there. THEY can't travel far.

But the seagull with his wings can go out a thousand miles to sea. For his food the eagle can go as far as he likes. HE HAS PERFECT TRANSPORTATION.

As human beings improve their transportation, thanks to electricity, they, too, will be able to go farther and farther to their homes. They will be able to have their work farther and farther from their nests. And consequently THE LAND WILL BECOME MORE AND MORE VALUABLE AT A DISTANCE. Boston is the working home of many. Its citizens have been hampered by wretched transportation at a high price.

The subways, the tunnels, the bridges, the competition between the various neighborhoods are constantly improving the possibilities of LIVING FAR FROM THE WORKSHOP.

The day of the crowded tenement is nearly gone. The man who chooses will be able to have his country home, his piece of ground, A DECENT LIFE FOR HIS CHILDREN, more cheaply than he can now get the wretched, narrow flat.

We emphasize real estate possibilities, ESPECIALLY FOR THE HOMESEEKERS.

We would far rather see a man buy a piece of land in the country, build on it, give his children the country life, than see him buy the land in the mere hope of making money.

But if we can give to our readers, to whom we owe so much, suggestions that will bring them in a cash return, we are glad to do it. And the best part of the present possibilities in real estate is this: You can at the same time get a good country HOME for yourself and your family, AND PILE UP PROFITS IN THE YEARS TO COME.

NOTHING IS AS SAFE AS A PIECE OF LAND. It cannot burn up. It cannot be stolen. It cannot run away or die. No cashier can take it away to Europe with him. No Rockefeller or Ryan can "WATER" all the value out of it.

Our advice to our readers is this:

Study the real estate possibilities carefully. Read all that is said in the various advertisements. TRUST NOBODY. SEE FOR YOURSELF, use your own brains.

Go to the place at once. Go again, rather than buy the first time. Don't be in a hurry.

Buy WHERE YOU CAN LIVE. Follow the direction of travel. Look on the map, study the railroads and trolleys built or planned. Find out the cost of commutation or of trolley fare, find out what it will cost you to build a little house, THEN BUY YOUR PROPERTY, BUILD AND LOCATE THERE IF YOU CAN. It is well to buy MORE than ONE lot. When you buy a lot to build on, buy two or three more adjoining, if possible. These you can use for gardening, for keeping chickens, for a healthful playground and workground for your children.

Every time a house is built, the land around is bound to be more valuable:

Before you build your house, get the land near it, so that the building of YOUR house may make YOUR land more valuable.

You can sell to a friend later, or, if you can afford it, you can hold on and gradually build one or two other houses to rent.

Here and there some man investing wisely will find himself made enormously rich by a very small investment. But that happens only rarely, and is not worth taking into consideration.

Of this, however, you may be sure.

If you buy land with judgment, YOU CANNOT LOSE YOUR MONEY, YOU MUST MAKE MONEY.

Owning land helps a man to save. He pays for it gradually, he takes an interest in life, it makes him a better citizen and a steadier man.

DON'T BUY MORE THAN YOU CAN AFFORD. Don't imagine that because you are making so much money now, you will always make as much. Don't bind yourself to pay each month more than you can EASILY pay. Use your judgment, be slow and cautious, but BUY REAL ESTATE.

MONOPOLY LODGE ADVERTISING DEPT.

Presents a Popular Design Showing the Unprecedented Boom in Spring Business

Why War Goes On

By Rev. Thomas B. Gregory

LORD BYRON astonished and astounded all Europe one day by declaring that he would "mightily like to know how it felt to be a murderer."

The noble lord was perfectly honest. He really desired to experience the feelings of the man whose hands were red with his brother's blood. This does not mean that Byron was a brute or a monster, but only a thoroughbred human being of the masculine gender, with the normal predilections of that strange product of nature.

But to leave the noble lord and come to humanity in general, it may be that in that humanity the tiger everywhere apparent.

The tiger loves blood. There is a sort of doubt about it. The king of the jungle mightily enjoys destruction for destruction's own sake. He is a great hunter, and the bigger the game the greater the enjoyment.

Man, like the tiger, is a great hunter, and, like the tiger, he enjoys hunting big game. The blood of the grizzly, the blood of the elephant, the blood of the moose, pleases him immensely; but not so much as the blood of that most royal game, Man.

In other words, man enjoys killing man. Enjoys it, I say. There is no exhilaration like that of the battlefield! Mountain air is a fair sort of tonic, champagne is a decided quickener of the heart, love's young dream is calculated to hasten the pulse somewhat, but none of these are to be compared with the game of war, in which living human beings are pitted against living human beings, the biggest game that man can play!

It is the tiger in us that all the culture and refinement and religion of thousands of years have not been able to eliminate—and will not be able to eliminate, perhaps, for thousands of years to come.

The Hague has just begun its beneficent work.

If you don't believe that this is so, look around. Behold the patent facts that on all sides challenge our attention.

See all the "civilized" peoples armed to the teeth, ready at a moment's notice to spring at one another's throats! Say, hoping that the chance to spring may come, and come quickly.

Nine-tenths of the thing called "patriotism" is simply the covetous tiger in us, anxiously waiting for the chance to lap its chops in blood.

Peace congresses are all right, but it will be a long time before their beautiful dream is realized. With the nations so many armed camps, with the President of the "leading" nation "killing things" just for the sake of killing them, or, what amounts to the same, just for the exhilaration of the hunt, it looks rather discouraging for the "Dove."

Still, the word is—Courage! Truth and right can afford to wait, and, if need be, to wait a long time. The tiger is dying slowly, but he is dying, and Peace will yet sit crowned and triumphant above the ruins that War has wrought.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox

She Suggests Co-operation Methods as the Only Cure of the Tipping System in Europe

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal Examiner

ALL over Europe the tip is a necessary part of expense, and he who tries to save on tip giving is "pound foolish and penny wise." However one may object to the system, it is not the time or place to try to institute a reform by refusing to give.

The omnibus and car conductor will be a franc's worth more considerate of your comfort if you expend ten centimes or even five in a tip. They will be sure to let you "descend" at your street. The fare in public conveyances in Europe is often only four, sometimes only three, cents; therefore, the tip need not be considered an extravagance.

The errand boy and girl, the hairdresser, and, in fact, all the people who serve you in any capacity, expect their "little money."

One young man told me he had given up the idea of taking a position offered him in a first-class house in America because he was informed that no tips were given in that line of industry.

He asked me why this was the fact. "Americans are so generous," he said, "they spend their money so freely, surely they do not begrudge the little pourboire?"

The American Idea

WHEN I explained that an American working at the same profession would feel offended at the offer of a tip he could not understand the point of view.

"But it is because the young American feels he is as good as the best," I said. "And a possible President or millionaire, that he does not like to be treated in this manner. He wants his salary raised by his employer, but he does not want tips from customers."

"Ah, yes," the young man sighed. "But, you see, here it is different. We are a worker, always a worker. We know our places, and are glad of every little help which enables us to make our economies."

It was said in the beginning of this article, tip giving is a necessity here in Europe, and it is folly to undertake to change existing conditions by scolding or by playing the miser.

But the system is all wrong in this age of intelligence, and it hinders the best development of humanity.

It encourages greed on one hand and servility on the other.

Any one who has visited the cooperative association at Brussels or Ghent, must realize the difference in the atmosphere and attitude of those workers from the outside toilers.

No tips are received there. It is not necessary.

In the various shops and restaurants the employes feel they are joint proprietors, and that whatever patronage you give the business means a certain amount of profit to them.

No one would think of tipping the proprietor of a large business house or hotel because he showed a customer a favor.

Just so these employes in the cooperative societies are part proprietors, and it is to their individual interest to make the business "go."

A Survival of the Past

SURELY the trend of such conditions is for a nobler manhood and womanhood than those prevailing in the business world at large.

The tip is a survival of past ages, and ought to be done away with.

It belongs to monarchies, and should not be popular in republics.

Co-operation methods offer the only cure of the evil.

Speed them, then!

The Lion and the Mouse

By WEX JONES

WE know, of course, that baseball's wrong when played upon the street,
And balls go crash! through windows and biff! on horses' feet.
It's all the playground some kids know, they've never seen a field;
But sympathy's a weakness to which we should not yield;
And when they block the sidewalks and make the traffic stop,
It's only right they should be pinched—that's why we pay the cop.

BIG MULLIGAN'S been on the force these fifteen years or more;
He's never had a reprimand, but medals by the score;
He'd dive into the river, with the temperature at zero,
To save a drowning hobo (and he hates the name of hero);
Yes, when the Holy Terrors had a League game in the street
Big Mulligan was strangely slow to chase them off his beat.

ONE day there was a sudden scrap; a lean stiletto flashed;
A wounded man fell, shrieking; away the other dashed
Right up against Big Mulligan, who slipped, but kept his hold;
The murderer poised his weapon as down the copper rolled.
But Red Patsy, of the Terrors, put a timely stop to that
As he sent the dagger spinning with a swift crack from his hat.

OF course, it's wrong of Mulligan, but now along his beat
The Terrors and the Topsies—well, they kind of own the street.
